Our generation is standing on the doorstep of a new millenium. As we push forward we realize just how far we have come and how much we have learned from the past. As a community of individuals, we have the power to decide our destiny and create our generation. Our ideas and inventions will carry us into this new age. The creativity we have expressed will be an example for generations to come. We have the power to decide what will become of our lives, and nothing can stop us. With the wisdom of yesterday and the strength of today, it is in our hands to grab hold of the future and hang on.....Now is the time to stand up and be proud of what we have accomplished and create a new identity for our generation.

CHANGES BRING A NEW YEAR

*It's tough to be a teenager, no one really knows
What the pressure is like in school, this is how it goes.
My friends they seem to like me, if I follow through with their dare.
But when I try to be myself, they never seem to care.
My mom, well she keeps saying, I gotta make the grade
While both my parents love me, it slowly seems to fade.
Sometimes I'm really lost, and wonder what to do
I wonder where to go, who can I talk to.
It's tough to be a teenager, sometimes life's not fair,
I wish I had somewhere to go, and someone to CARE.*

Tony Overman

This year many differences from the past took place in school. One of the major changes was the new Associate Principal, Dan Dillard. Mr. Dillard came to Lisle from Farmington High School, which is located west of Peoria. There he worked with a student body of four hundred and fifty students under the same job. The job of Associate Principal is also new to our school. This job differs from that of Athletic Director, (which is the job he replaced), because this job works more with the building, grounds, maintenance, and custodians as well as athletics and activities.

Some more additions to administration include five new teachers, two inclusion facilitators, and a new liaison officer. Ms. Danielle Fortuna teaches Spanish one and two; Mr. Mark Green teaches Accounting, Business Law, Keyboarding, Co-op, and Consumers Education; Mrs. Debbie Kehoe teaches Physical Education; Mrs. Kristie Selby teaches Biology; and Mrs. Kathy Swanson teaches Spanish and English. The inclusion facilitators include Ms. April Source and Mrs. Gail Venard. Officer Jeff Simeral took Officer Rob Munson's previous job place, (which is liaison officer).

Another new addition to our school was the start of a swim team. The swim team was made up of individuals who practiced on their own and attended swim team sectionals. Our football team beat Harvard for the first time in many years. This was also the last year that we will play Harvard. As for other new improvements, students can look for construction on the highschool starting this summer.

HEAVEN ON EARTH

As night fell on September 23rd, eager couples began to arrive by the car full to this year's Homecoming. The time was 7:30 as the event began. Despite the disappointing loss of the game that day the crowd was still pumped for dancing the night away to the DJ's music.

Refreshments were served at the back of the beautifully transformed commons. Blue streamers hung from the ceiling along with balloons and stars, as the theme was Heaven is a Place on Earth. Happy people packed the crowded dance floor and within an hour the front doors were opened to let a cool draft cool the hot dancers. Following tradition, the senior girls and some guys climbed to the stage to dance at the last homecoming of their high school experience.

The homecoming court was announced around 9:00. The King Andrew Payne and Queen Erin Hyland had their dance in the spotlight to the cheering of the crowd.

The dance came to an end as scheduled at 10:30 and people poured out of the building into the night to complete their after dance plans. Despite the rain that was falling outside, couples were still excited about their after plans. This included eating out and going to house parties with friends or even just heading home for a good night's sleep.

Homecoming is the first dance of the school year and one of the most anticipated. It is a time for old friends to reunite, and new friends to meet. It's a chance for all the classes to build up school spirit and take pride in what they have accomplished. "The dance this year seemed to be a huge success as there was one of the biggest turn outs, and more enthusiasm than Lisle has seen in awhile," one attendee commented.

▲Maren Mack, Rebecca Dzurisko and Stephanie Bogseth enjoy their last homecoming at Lisle, as they follow the Senior tradition of dancing on the stage.

FILLED WITH SPIRIT

It was finally Friday, September 22, and time for the homecoming pep rally. The students filed into the gym hearing lively music provided by the band. The first thing on the agenda was homecoming coronation. There was thirteen people on court and each person was announced separately. After everyone was announced it was time for the results of king and queen, and the runner up couple. The runners up were Lisa Eugea and Jordan Scott, and the king and queen were Andrew Payne and Erin Hyland. The Flag Corp was the first performance after coronation. They performed to a theme of Drew Carey. The J.V. Cheerleaders came out next performing to an N'Sync song. The Drill Team took the floor next and did their separate class routines. Then they did their combined performance to a mix of songs. Finally the Varsity Cheerleaders performed to a selection of different songs to get the crowd involved. There was a new addition to the events in the pep rally. It was Pie-A-Teacher. Students could pay money to put their name in the selected box they wish and whichever teacher got the most money would receive a pie in the face. The lucky teacher and student this year were Ms. Kehoe and Karen Seung. There were many cheers as the pie was smashed into Ms. Kehoe's face and whipped cream flew all over the place. The Break Through competition was the next event. Each class paints and designs their own breakthrough compete against all of the other classes. This year the senior breakthrough won. The next event was the winner of the male drill team competition from Decathorama. The Junior male drill team was the winner. There was a slight problem though. They couldn't get their music to work. After several minutes of trying to get it to work they were told to sit down, and that there wouldn't be a male drill team performance this year. Finally we got to the battle cry competition between the classes. The cheerleaders took the floor and led each class. The Senior class overpowered the other classes and won. While the school song was playing the students marched out of the gym to use their spirit for the events of the next day.

COURAGE AND HEART

The Reed-Custer Comets ventured into the heart of Lion Country this Homecoming. The Lions Junior Varsity defeated them for a spectacular win, but the Lions Varsity squad lost a 15-14 nailbiter. The close loss was a heartbreaker on the special event.

Students met the dreary overcast Saturday with an air of joy. A buzz of excitement had swept the school during the homecoming preparations. The confident Varsity team went into the game with a great record of 3-1. Festivities kicked off with the annual homecoming parade through Lisle. Rainy, cloudy skies threatened to ruin the morning parade, but it held off until the parade had been completed. The cheerleaders, drill team, school clubs, class floats, and of course, Homecoming Court, were all in attendance for the special occasion.

The Junior Varsity team opened up the day with a spectacular victory. The Comet's Junior Varsity football squad wasn't ready for the aggressive Lion's offense. Led by freshman quarterback John McDonald, The Junior Varsity played a successful game and emerged victorious. The final score was 22-12 in the Lions favor. What astounded the fans and parents most was that the J/V squad had ended their 0-4 losing streak on one of the most momentous games of the season.

Varsity pregame festivities were kicked off by the band, cheerleaders, and drill team. Homecoming Court was introduced and greeted by an excited crowd. Rain from the previous night and J/V game had transformed the field into a muddy mess. This was destined to level the skills of the two teams and hinder the normal Lion offensive strategy. Reed-Custer opened the game with determination, scoring twice in the first half. The Lions met the Comets touchdown drives and managed to score a two point conversion. This left the half-time score at 14-12. The Lions rallied hard going into the second-half. The Lions unfortunately allowed one field goal to slip through their defenses. This field goal early in the third-quarter left the Lions trailing 14-15.

After a strong offensive push late in the fourth-quarter, led by sophomore quarterback Kevin Crouch, the Lions found themselves inside the Comet's twenty yard line. With one minute left in the game, the Lions were fourth-and-two from the eight yard line. Reed-Custer managed to stop the lions last ditch effort and received the ball on loss of downs. The Comet's ran down the few remaining seconds of the clock, destroying any hopes for one more touchdown. Determined as Coach Dan Sanko and his coaching staff was to bring the team to victory, last minute misfortune resulted in the final score of 14-15 in the Comets favor. The Lions had laid it all out on the field; and in doing so showed the heart, courage, and determination they would carry with them through the rest of the season.

KEEPING SPIRITS UP

The week before homecoming is a very special time of year for a high school student. The week includes a chance for classes to compete and to make students show their pride in our school. Spirit week began with Decathorama, which was held on a Sunday at the Jr. High. Decathorama is an opportunity for the classes to go up head to head in activities such as tug-of-war and water balloon toss. This year's winning class was the seniors. Monday started the school week off right with pajama day. Unfortunately, many students used this day to sleep in class. The next day, crazy hat day, allowed the students to ignore a school rule, which everyone enjoyed. Also, crazy tie day brought people to school looking a little more formal. The last spirit days were class shirt day, and blue and white day, which featured our famous school colors. On Friday, everyone packed the gym for a pep assembly where students' spirits were raised as high as possible. The students tried to build the confidence of the football players for an important game. Our king and queen, Andrew Payne and Erin Hyland blinded the crowd with their smiles as they stole the lime light. The drill team, cheerleaders, band, and flags showed what they had prepared for the homecoming game. Friday night was the first annual Mr. Lisle Pageant. This was a chance for three males from each class to compete in areas such as talent and evening wear. This year's winner was Jordan Scott. This was a very interesting and exciting twist to the usual Homecoming events. And of course, all the great festivities lead to the homecoming football game and ended with a relaxing, enjoyable dance. The dance was a fun chance to reflect on the good times of the previous week.

ACADEMICS

MATH MADNESS

The math teachers came together in hope of making the math department the best it has ever been. The teaching staff was encouraged to think with originality and variety when coming up with new ideas. They decided to broaden their horizons with a morning math lab and a new web site.

Does this confuse you;  $x=3(3y+x) 5(2+5-8)(3.14156472)$ ? Well, maybe you went to the morning math lab for problems like this. The morning math lab has shown the determination of the teaching staff to encourage students to come in for extra help. Students receive help on homework and have the chance to make up work they missed. It is held thirty minutes before school in Room 203 (computer lab). The teachers also encourage students to come in after school for help. Mrs. Sharon Smith states, "just because we have the morning math lab does not mean we still are not here after school to help students." Mrs. Sharon Smith also believes the morning math lab helps to assure that any student who needs a question answered or some extra help has access to one of the teachers from the math department. A dedicated teacher is assigned for each day of the week and they all hope it will continue to be a success in the future.

The math department has also created a new web site. The address is www.Lisle.dupage.k12.il.us. The web site contains teacher schedules, math courses, math team events, teacher profiles, math prerequisite, tips for parents, textbook lists, math study tips, and AP exam information. The teachers also have the option to personalize there web site, but as of now, only Mr. Mike Coit has done so. Everyone hopes that the morning math lab and the new web site will improve the quality of learning for future students.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

The world is full of all sorts of amazing things. Yet what exists to explore the vastness. Science and all of it's outstretched arms embrace the mystery.

These courses are Physical Science, Biology, Chemistry, Physics and Physiology. Physical Science is offered to incoming Freshmen. This course explores the general aspects of science. Freshmen and Sophomores are offered the opportunity to take Biology. Biology explores the biological organisms and their environment. Juniors can opt to take Chemistry. This course explores the elements that make up the majesty of the world around us. Seniors have the grand opportunity to take Physics or Physiology. Physics further explores the intricacies of how our universe works and at the end of the course you are given the opportunity to explore the wonders of Six Flags Great America's amusement park. Physiology explores in greater depth the inner workings of biological life forms. In Physiology you even get to dissect a cat.

These courses are a great asset to anyone's high school carer. Taking a science class each year is not required, but it is recommended that one do so. Colleges find a student with a very rigorous course selection has a lot of potential. These courses make you a well rounded individual.

But who is there to teach the students? The highly educated science department's faculty and staff. This staff includes; Mr. Tim Peters, Mr. Michael Crouch, Mr. Larry Bates, Mrs. Robin DiNardo, and Ms. Kim Coffelt. This state of the art, highly dedicated staff makes sure that each student gets to take full advantage of each class offered.

▲One of the reasons that students take the Traditional English class is to escape a school day and spend a few hours in Medieval Times.

NEW BEGINNINGS

From studying about Medieval Times in Traditional English class to preparing for the future in Writing for College, the English department's staff of seven teachers provides students with a wide variety of different courses that can be taken. These classes range from English I-English IV, Creative Writing, Modern Literature, World Literature, and Honors English.

The seven highly qualified teachers who run the show include Mrs. Cheryl Sullivan, who has been a teacher at Lisle for eighteen years, and the department chairman for fifteen years and counting, Mrs. Laura Conroy, Mr. Rick Beato, Mr. Ken Jakalski, Mrs. Marti Truemper, Ms. Leslie Jordan, who is also the Drama course teacher, and fall play director, and last but not least, Mrs. Kathy Swanson, the newest member of the department. Along with English, Mrs. Swanson teaches Spanish. Mrs. Swanson is a Lisle High School graduate, and has now returned to start her career as a Lisle High School teacher.

Together, the English staff teaches students communication skills through grammar, and looking at several types of literature. Considering that communication is key in everyday life, the English department is crucial. Not only are writing skills and vocabulary important, but speech skills are necessary. The English department provides needed information to communicate with the expanding world around us.

THE PAST PRESERVED

World History, Geography, United States History, and American Government are all Social Studies courses that are filled with many important historical facts. You can travel to Africa and back in a fifty minute time span in World History. While you are there, you can learn about the different cultures and living styles of different African tribes. During other units, some of your visits may take you to Ancient Rome, the pyramids of Egypt, or even to Europe for the Industrial Revolution.

Geography helps pinpoint different world locations and land forms. The class also provides information about different natural resources and their values.

United States History allows students to study how our country has evolved through time. Along the way, students can focus on certain leaders, immigration, or simply technological advances that have altered the ways of living. You can even enter the battle fields during World War I, and World War II in United States History.

American Government provides students with the knowledge of past presidents and the ever-so-needed court system. you can learn about how each president has affected our country.

Social studies is not limited to learning about past and present world changes. The department also provides a psychology course for students who want to learn about human behavior. Ms. Christine Johnson teaches the class about the conscious and subconscious, and also perception and sensation. According to junior Stacy Tuma, the class is a lot of fun. The people in the class make it very interesting, and she enjoys the different human behavior activities.

The world is always changing with the times. Our school's social studies courses allow students to learn about specific events that have led up to what our world is today. We are examples of what future generations will be studying. We are now forming the pages of what will be found in other social studies books in years to come.

FOOD FIGHT

Students watch the clock in their fourth period class anticipating exactly when the bell will ring for lunch. Each student counting every minute left until 11:22. When the bell rings, some students walk out of class with smiles on their faces. Others walk out with frowns because they have to suffer till lunch B or even lunch C. Senior Kara Houlihan says her day would not be the same without the relaxation of lunch. Kara's statement was unanimous and students are excited to have a break from tests and teachers, even for only 23 minutes of the day. Students then begin to try to find a seat in the crowded cafeteria. Everyone, that is, the seniors who are the only exception: they have already claimed the long table at the front nearest to the food. Soon after, everyone is seated, ready to talk about their wild and crazy weekends while eating. Friends surround the table listening attentively. Those not deep in conversation are throwing food across the cafeteria or finishing last minute homework.

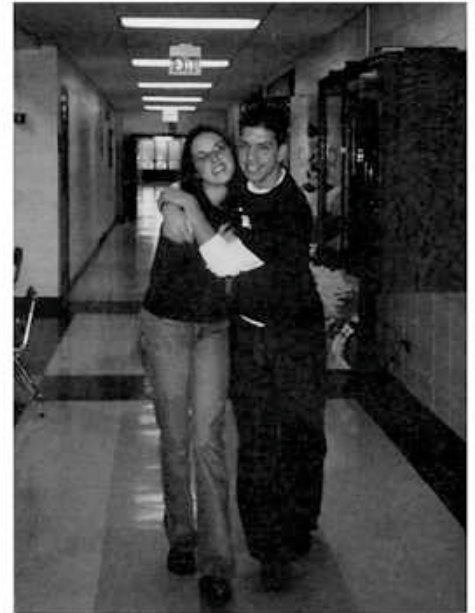

Students that do not bring lunch from home, wait in the long snack bar, salad bar, or regular lunch lines. They consider lunch a hassle on days new employees are being hired. Students had to bare with only five minutes to relax and eat. Although, the lunch service improves each passing day due to the hard-working employees.

During lunch, school clubs are able to announce upcoming fundraisers. Student Congress is continually in need of help to raise money for homecoming, dances, and prom. American Field Services (AFS) offers a candy guess for any willing participants. The Key Club provides a Valentine's Day flower and candy sale. School clubs enjoy having the chance to let the students know of the upcoming events and fundraisers.

For years, lunch has been considered a time to relax and catch up on the gossip. This year is no exception. Students are happy to have a time of the day when obnoxious laughing is not frowned upon.

SWEAT CITY

▼Sophomore Mauricio Ayala holds his follow through as he attempts a shot to impress the ladies in his class.

There is always that one class that is impossible to sleep through. In this case, that class is gym. That is what makes gym class special...the fact that there are no desks, no chalkboards, and more importantly...no homework. Physical Education class offers a wide range of interesting sports, while, at the same time, ensures a quality fitness experience. It gives students a chance to get their blood flowing with a little fun 'n games.

As nice as this may sound, it is not a free-for-all. Class follows a strict schedule of pre-decided sports and activities. Each activity lasts through a duration of 4 weeks. With each sport, the students must take a written test on the sport, as well as physical skills testing. Along with this comes everyone's favorite...the state-required fitness testing at the beginning and end of each year. Doesn't that sound fun?

The P.E. teachers need to have a lot of patience and energy to keep up with their students everyday. The teachers who so graciously dedicate their time to helping the students be physically fit are Mr. Jim Steben, Mr. Dan Sanko, Mr. Don Green and Mrs. Debbie Kehoe.

Mrs. Kehoe is new to the teaching staff this year. She came here from Waubonsie Valley High School where she taught math, (believe it or not). She teaches five gym classes a day, periods two through six. Mrs. Kehoe is tough, but works well with the students and knows how to let loose and have a good time. Everyone is glad to have her here and hopes she is enjoying the Lisle scene.

Obviously, sleeping is probably the best part of any class, but if you need a break from catching up on your rest, give P.E. a try. It is a fun way to be healthy and get credit for it!

SKILLS FOR LIVING

Aromas of good food, sounds of little children playing, and even the occasional fire alarm going off are reminders of the Home Economics program at Lisle. The program is led every year by Mrs. Kathy Jankovic. Home Economics offers a huge variety of courses from Child Development and Single Survival to Food Preparation.

Each course offers lessons on basic skills of life. Child development focuses on the caring for, raising, and dealing with children. Students get a chance to interact with pre-school age children that come to Lisle High School for the pre-school program. During the year the students will also receive "Think it over" dolls that are supposed to give a real life idea of what having a baby is like. The dolls have a timed recorded cry that sounds at all hours of the day. The students carry the dolls with them all day every day for a weekend. They are then graded on the attentiveness the doll has gotten by a machine sensor in the dolls body.

Single Survival is a popular course that goes over some basic cooking skills, simple economics, and even allows one to design an apartment. The course is designed to give students some head start for college or single living when they won't have their parents to take care of them anymore. From paying for your first car to designing and owning your own apartment many students find the class to be helpful as they prepare to fend for themselves in coming years.

Food preparation teaches many different techniques of cooking and allows students plenty of hands on cooking experience. Students are required to make many different meals from quick breads, to breakfast, and even Christmas dinner. "I like being able to eat twice a day," one student commented.

EXPANDING HORIZONS

Technology is the driving force behind modern society, and allows us all to be more efficient and successful. Technology class provides students with the knowledge and insight into technology that furthers their understanding of the world around them. Mr. Ralph King is continuing to do his best to keep students on the cutting edge of technology. Mr. King gives the students enriching projects and assignments that broaden his students horizons and open them up to the world of technology and computers. The projects give students valuable practical experience with a better grasp of the most recent popular software and applications. Computers are used as a teaching tool heavily by Mr. King. Each student works at a work station with their own computer working with that computer for all of the assignments. These work stations also help to illustrate how the work world is formatted. The students are working on web pages, producing videos, and making up technology companies. Not all of the projects assigned are hands on; many force the students to take a critical look at the world around them and assess the effects and future of technology. All of the skills the students are learning will be valuable in tomorrows work force. Tech class is giving students the competitive edge they need to shape our future and create our generation.

HUMANITIES MEETS THE ARTS

▼ Senior Jill Cromwell hops off the bus after an exciting day touring downtown Chicago on the Architectural Boat Tour.

Humanities, a group of gifted upperclassmen, regularly meets and attends cultural events on field trips. Humanities students give up their lunch hour three days a week to eat in Mr. Rick Beato's room and discuss recent field trips or other cultural events. Requirements for entry into the group have changed from attending after-school meetings to writing an essay. Students in Humanities are normally in Honors English, and they require an upperclassman sponsor before joining the group.

Humanities students attend monthly cultural events such as plays, concerts, and tours. Some of this year's highlights included Macheth, Two Gentlemen of Verona, King Lear, Big River with alumnus Pat Sarb, the Glenn Miller Orchestra, an Architectural Boat Cruise, and the Museum of Science and Industry.

Humanities students are not just interested in their own educational development, as many Humanities students participate in the tutoring program as well. Senior Tom McLaughlin heads this year's program, where gifted upperclassmen help other students who are struggling in a class. Senior Kim Laschiazza commented, "It helps the kids because we're their age; they're more comfortable around us than they might be around someone older."

Humanities students receive a better understanding of the arts and of themselves. The students gladly pay the $90 annual fee in exchange for a chance to witness the arts in action and be able to discuss them intelligently with their peers.

CREATING ARTISTS

From painted windows and murals to display cases filled with work, art contributes to the overall aura of the school. Mrs. Susonne Pietrantoni's art classes are a traditional favorite of many students. The relaxed atmosphere and entertaining projects give students a welcome break from the day's trauma. Mrs. P does her best to nurture each student's artistic abilities.

The school offers many different media's of art in the four elective classes available to students; drawing and painting, ceramics, art I and art II. Art I offers the most basic beginning to art with projects from all medias of painting, drawing, and ceramics.

Art II is the same idea as art I except the projects have higher difficulty levels. Ceramics is self explanatory as it focuses mainly on working with clay and the pottery wheel. Drawing and Painting is for students to focus on more in depth projects using different types of paint, charcoal, marker and pencil to create works.

Students who have created outstanding projects can put their works on display in the case located just outside the main office in the cafeteria.

A new addition to the art staff at school was Mrs. Kim the student teacher who took on 3rd hour this year.

Mrs. P's art classes will continue to be time honored favorite classes among the students to come and leave many pleasant memories from students past.

SPEAK UP

In this day and age, the world is filled with diversity. Thousands of people of all cultures and walks of life populate the single country of America alone. How can we connect with all those people who are different from ourselves? Students are given the opportunity to learn about two distinctly unique cultures by taking either French or Spanish class. French is taught by Mrs. Chovelak. Spanish is taught by Senora Kathy Sally and two new teachers, Ms.Kathy Swanson and Ms.Danielle Fortuna.

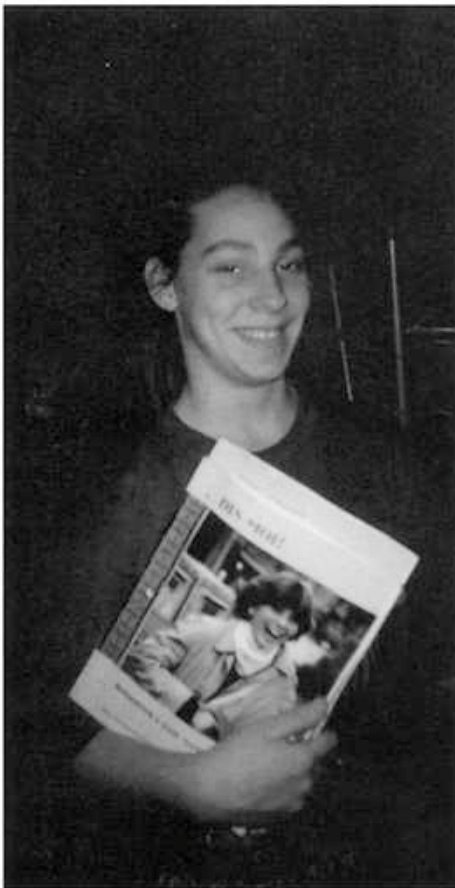

French and Spanish class teach the languages and cultures of the people in the countries of France and Spain. The cultures of people world-wide with French and Spanish ancestry are also studied. Vocabulary and grammar are the main focuses of these classes. A lot can be learned about different people through language. Language in any form whether spoken or written is the first step of communication. Language can connect people who are a thousand miles apart or a world apart. Studying languages and cultures help students to understand and accept people of all nationalities and races. Connecting with other cultures can help us to accept all the differences in the world, and it also makes us realize how similar every person really is.

HEALTHY FOR LIFE

How's your health today? It's not a question you're asked every day, but nonetheless it is an important one. Disease, smoking, substance abuse, pollution, and a hundred other factors threaten millions of lives each day. Many people, especially teenagers, are often unaware as to how to lead a healthy life and lower the risks of disease caused deaths. The goal of health class is to provide sophomore students with the knowledge to have a long, healthy life. Students learn about diseases such as heart disease, cancer, and AIDS. In-depth knowledge about these diseases and ways to prevent them from occurring are part of the curriculum. Students also learn about all of the bones and other parts of the body. Healthy diet and exercise habits are encouraged. States of mental health are also studied. Students in health class learn about these serious issues in fun ways. Many activities are combined to make learning interesting and interactive. Running down the halls to test heart rate and taking a purity test are just some of the favorite activities of the students. Mr. Sanko, health and P.E. teacher, feels that health is a very important class. He wants all of his students to be able to positively answer the question, How's your health today?

EXPANDING EDUCATION

Learning is sometimes best done outside of the classroom. There are two programs that are offered to students to gain real world experience and in demand skills. These programs are Co-op and the Technology Center of Dupage. Co-op is an in and out of the classroom experience. The in-class portion, instructed by Mr. Mark Green, teaches students what they need to know to be successful in the work force. After fifth hour these students gain real life experience by working in a job. By doing this they are being introduced into the working force. By working in jobs outside of school it helps students to learn how to be responsible.

The Technology Center of Dupage is an opportunity for students to learn certain trades. Students leave after lunch A and are transported to the Technology Center of Dupage. There they attend classes in a certain area of work. Students also attend classes on Saturdays when they are involved in this program. This allows students to have an opportunity to get a job out of highschool or to use these skills to pay their way through college. These two programs present great opportunities for students to get real world experiences. It also teaches them about the work force and to take on the responsibilities of the world.

CLEAR THE ROADS

Every year fifteen year olds spend hours at the Department of Motor Vehicles in order to receive a magic piece of paper called a permit. Once they have received a permit it is now time to hit the road. Although most people would not want to be a drivers ed teacher, Mr. Don Green and Mr. Evan Gollan take on this task.

Drivers ed has always been a highlight of every highschool students career. It is the first step towards independence and true responsibility. Students are more enthusiastic about drivers ed than others. Even though it may not prepare you for college, it is something you will need for the rest of your life.

There are many exciting activities that students can participate in during their drivers ed course. The first activity is a lesson that everyone can use. Drunk driving has always been considered a serious issue. The students drive through a course in a golf cart while wearing drunk goggles. This was not a simple task. Students seemed to run over every cone they came in contact with. The goggles gave the students a bad sense of direction. Also, students are able to visit Fair Oaks Ford, a car dealership located off Ogden in Naperville, there drivers ed students were able to ride the Convincer. The Convincer is a simulation of a low mileage accident and shows the importance of a seat belt. At the end of the day, students receive a bag of souvenirs and return to school.

During drivers ed , students receive a driving grade and a class grade, which are both important. Students need to pass both in order to receive a blue slip. Once they receive a blue slip, they must wait until they turn sixteen. Then, the waiting game at the DMV begins all over again.

CLUBS

NEW CULTURES

AFS is a club that provides a chance for students to work together to communicate with more than ten AFS countries around the world. This year Lisle was fortunate to have an exchange student from Spain, Rocio Garcia-Montero. She was able to enjoy many of Lisle's activities and also activities of AFS. Organizing AFS this year was Nebela Sherwani, and Inclusion Aid at Lisle, who took over the position of AFS sponsor. She also had the help of an honorary co-sponsor Yousef Matariyeh, the psychiatrist at Lisle. Also helping out the sponsors this year were President Sophia Panos, Vice President Bridget Wenban, Secretary Megan Sally, Treasurer Katie Ehrhardt, Publicity Vern Johnson, and Class Officers Dan O'Donahue, Lauren Sampson, and Keely Hyland.

The AFS club runs on a point system. To acquire these points club members participated in AFS events. To start off the year AFS held an ethnic dinner at Mongolian Barbecue. They held raffles throughout the year including a candy raffle at the beginning of the year, and a raffle at the Lisle Fall Play's Dinner Theatre. AFS also participated in the Homecoming Parade, representing their club along with many other clubs. The highlights of this year were short term exchanges. These were held between Lisle and other schools, or other exchange students from neighboring schools. These students came from everywhere, from Sweden to Australia. During the second short term exchange AFS corresponded with Tennessee. During these exchanges students participated in many activities such as trips downtown, group dinners, and laser tag. Lisle students enjoyed many great experiences with students from around the world.

COMMUNITY WORK

Key Club is a community helping based organization. They hold various fundraising activities throughout the year such as send a "crush" to your crush, and a candy cane sale. They also sponsor a blood drive, during which 55 pints of blood were given, and they attend Snow Valley Nursing home, a couple times a year.

The club officers include; President Erin Patterson, Vice President Megan Sally, Recording Secretary Jamie Muelhausen, Statistical Secretary Kim Laschiazza, Treasurer Erin Hyland, Senior Representative Nicole Dean, Junior representative Jessica Schmitz, Sophomore Representative Jenny Patterson, Freshmen Representatives Bri Smith, Jane Smallwood, and Carolyn Sarb, and Sponsor Mrs. Sally.

Key Club also sponsors many activities together such as, a Pizza Party at the beginning of the year, a Kiwanis Christmas Party, a trip to the Brookfield Zoo, and group volunteer work for just some of the many activities.

DO WHAT COMES NATURAL... HELP!

For this group of highly talented group of individuals helping comes naturally. These individuals were chosen for their openness to their classmates' concerns. If any one needs to talk, these are the individuals to consult. They are open and easy to talk to.

Natural Helpers attend meetings each month to discuss, practice and polish up interpersonal skills. This is done thru detailed conversations and elaborate skits. Some of the issues focused on in the skits and discussions are; school violence, teenage pregnancies, drug abuse, and suicides. One of the key themes that they have learned is that talking to another may help an individual to sort out and solve their problems. These individuals can only help the student to see options, but they do not counsel and the student must make their own decisions.

The sponsors, Mrs. Jackie Pipkin and Mr. Yousef Matariyeh, oversee these monthly meetings. They also supervise the students in various pantry drives. These drives are engaged to benefit the less fortunate. Included in these drives are collections for; food, clothing, and supplies.

In this group they do what comes naturally. They help.

TASC IN ACTION

Teens Assisting Student Concerns (TASC) is an organization composed of a variety of students willing to help the environment. TASC members believe that in order for students to be the best they can, they must be in a liveable environment. Students think of any way possible to give the school a good name.

The club sponsor, Ms. Cheryl Sullivan, sets a spectacular example for all students and club officers. Club officers include President Brandi Wells, Vice President Marcellis Williams, Secretary Rosha Reid, and Treasurer Julie Barker. Together the officers and Ms. Cheryl Sullivan create ideas for candy sales, dances, and rose sales. The meetings allow students to voice their opinions on the ideas. Then, students are told to write their name under the activity they would like to participate in. The officers contact those students when the activity date arrives.

One of the most exciting trips of the year is the IDEA Conference. The first four students to sign up for this activity were the lucky students to be able to attend. There are speakers present that conduct anti-drug and anti-alcohol sessions. They inform the students of these detrimental effects on the body, mind, and spirit. Other speakers give examples on how to receive a high leadership position. Students that attended the IDEA Conference said they know that the information they were given will be beneficial in the long run.

Tasc has allowed students to help better the school as a whole. Members have allowed themselves to stop sitting around and take action into their own hands. They let other students know that the school environment can not change by itself. It needs the helping hand of all the students of Lisle Senior High School.

HONORING ARTISTS

Talent can be found everywhere at school. This includes a vast array of skilled people that range from writers to sports players to musicians. One group in particular is especially gifted in the field of art. These students make up the National Art Honors Society. To qualify for the National Art Honors Society, each student must submit a couple of their own works of art to be evaluated and also must have earned a B or better in every art class he/she has ever taken. NAHS is a small group which takes time to appreciate art, as well as create it.

Mrs. Susonne Pietrantoni is the advisor for NAHS. Along with being an artist herself, Mrs. P is also a great leader and knows how to cut loose and have fun. Sometimes the students in National Art Honors Society need some direction in their work, thus, Mrs. P to the rescue.

NAHS is notorious for their artwork in the hallways and on windows during the year. Every holiday, or just ordinary days for that matter, the NAHS displays their creativity around the school to refresh and enliven the school.

Along with the frequent designs around the halls, another part of belonging to NAHS is the field trips. Anyone who has ever been in NAHS knows it's all about the field trips. NAHS has gone to places such as the Museum of Contemporary Art and the Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Exhibit. On these field trips, the students get a chance to break loose and enjoy the artwork of famous artists. Hopefully, each student will return with some inspiration from past great artists.

National Art Honors Society is a wonderful opportunity for those students seeking a career in art, or those who are simply gifted and looking for a chance to show it. NAHS honors students artistic talents, as well as honoring the talents of artists from the past.

FULFILLING AMBITIONS

Thespians is a group of multi-talented students with the desire to do what they love. It allows students to reveal their true individuality and creativity. Ms. Leslie Jordan, the experienced theatre director, helps her students in anyway possible. She knows through her personal experiences that guidance is needed in order for students to fulfill their ambitions.

Every year thespians conduct their annual fall play, Improv Show, and One Acts. These shows are open to any interested students. It's a great opportunity for students to work with other talented individuals in the school. Students and families jump at the chance to see how the theatre program has been progressing.

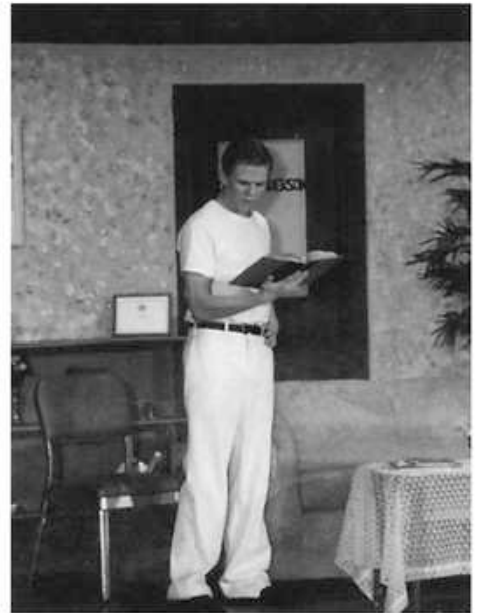

After sometime, serious thespians strive to become International Thespians. International Thespians are students who have extraordinary acting or crew skills. They are told that participation in a certain number of plays or musicals will gain them enough points to be initiated into international thespians. When a student has received all necessary points, an induction dinner is held. Ms. Jordan formally congratulates them into the group.

Students inducted into International Thespians are usually those chosen to go to the Theatre Fest at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana in January. The fest allows students to choose from a variety of workshops and meet other dedicated thespians from around the Illinois area. "It was so fun last year and I can't wait to go again," said junior Megan Hatfield.

For years thespians has been known as a group of students with exciting personalities; students who are ready to show the world what they can do. They know that with Ms. Leslie Jordan's guidance that the future will only promise great things.

LIGHTS, CAMERA

The fall play, Harvey, was a dramatic comedy by Mary Chase. It was directed by Ms. Leslie Jordan, with help from student director, Rodney Donahue.

The story is about, Elwood P. Dowd, played by Glenn Walker. Elwood is almost never without his dear friend Harvey, an imaginary 6 foot pooka. His sister, Veta Louise Simmons, played by Mollie Samocha, and his niece, Myrtle Mae Simmons, played by Megan Hatfield, are embarrassed by Elwood's friendship with Harvey. They take him to a mental hospital to him committed, so he wouldn't embarrass him any longer. The doctors, Dr. Lyman Sanderson, played by Neil Pandya, and Dr. William R. Chumley, played by Chris Kerback, accidentally commit Veta instead of Elwood. With all the commotion, it leads to many twists and turns for the rest of the play.

All members both cast and crew put in many hours of hard work to make this play come together and be a great success.

YEARBOOK SCHMEARBOOK

To some a yearbook may appear to be just pictures and faces. This years 2001 Vale Staff worked together to put together the faces and pictures and create the memories that make up our generation. The stories and people portray fashion, trends, memories, and events. They allow the student body to reflect on the times considered the best four years of a students life.

This years staff was headed by second year sponsor Mr. Rick Beato and Editors-In-Chief Sophia Panos and Jenna Leone. Also contributing their time with editorial positions were Erin Crosh as Senior Editor, Kara Houlihan as Copy Editor, and Colleen Carrell as Photo Editor. This year was off to a great start with fifteen staff members, mainly consisting of Seniors and Juniors. The VALE staff had one dedicated freshman Preeti Nath.

Yearbook is very time consuming and can often be a very gruelling task. There are five main deadlines that the staff must meet. Often students are required to spend extra hours at the school working on the computers, which were moved to Mr. Beato's room this year. Formerly the Yearbook room was located in the end computer room upstairs. Many times the staff is bribed by Editors with candy in order to complete their work on time. Also, if every staff member makes deadline, then a free dinner at a restaurant of choice is rewarded. Seniors that choose to enroll in Yearbook make the commitment to miss the opportunity to only have to attend school for six class periods. Students are very likely to have seen one of the staff members running around with a camera and notebook pushing for an interview in order to get the right story.

This year is mainly consisted of new members. Only five of the fifteen staff members were returning members. Also, junior Shiraz Sherwani was the only male on the staff. It was always expected of him to have something good for the CD player. Some students who will hold editorial positions next year will attend yearbook camp this summer in order to learn of the new ideas and technologies for the 2002 VALE edition.

As the year winds up the Juniors are required to take over all positions as the Seniors have the last three months of school off. This gives the incoming staff for next year the opportunity to work together and complete a deadline alone. All together the staff enjoyed all the food and memories that went into making a book about our generation. Together we created the things that hopefully all will remember.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Spreading news to the school community, students on the MANESTREAM staff come together and practice their journalism skills. They provide an archival record of happening through the year. The news magazine is a major source of communication as well as accurate and understandable information on school events, activities, and issues published by students. It enlightens and entertains their audience on an approximate monthly basis. It is offered to all members of the school community free of charge, including students, parents, and anyone else interested.

Through the oversight of Mr. Rick Beato and Mr. Ralph King, the publication advisors, the MANESTREAM staff members have the opportunity to learn and apply journalism principles and standards. For many, it is a chance to expand their abilities and acquire new talents, training for future jobs and avenues of life. The editorial staff consists of Editors-in-Chief Erin Patterson and Samantha Campanaro, Managing and Copy Editor Cortney Kuzma, News Editor Debra Phelps, Feature Editor Maria Campanaro, Sports Editor Sapna Kumar, and Business Manager Katie Colias. The editors choose what topics and issues to address in the News Magazine, and assign them to the editorial staff or staff reporters. Hardworking and resolute, they investigate, interview, put it all together, and publish.

A new and sensational addition to MANESTREAM is Paw Prints, the first literary magazine. This supplement is a collection of poems, short stories, and art from students. Cortney Kuzma and Lauren Sampson, who are the editors in charge, hope to make this a more frequent addition in years to come because it is a wonderful way to publicize the students literature.

Decisions are made everyday for upcoming events to guarantee prosperity for the school. Future happenings are carefully planned out to incorporate excitement, fun, spirit, variety, and success; that is exactly what Student Congress is all about.

Led by sponsor Mrs. Marti Truemper, a select few students meet at least once a month to regulate school functions and design plans for what lies ahead. The student representatives include President Jamie Muelhausen, Vice-President Veronica Johnson, Secretary Michelle Gartelos, Treasurer Erin Hyland, Chair People Erin Patterson and Bridget Wenban, executive board Pat Pollard, Kim Laschiazza, and Justin Heath, plus five additional representatives from each class. These privileged guys and girls are elected by their peers and help keep the student body's voice circulating through the system.

Student Congress organizes many fund raisers, dances, and events throughout the school year, the major one being Homecoming week. They put much work and effort into arranging activities for the week to stir up enthusiasm amongst their peers, which include Decathorama, dress up days, the parade, the game, the dance, and much more. Their committment of long hours and behind the scenes labor all pays off through their final product.

Another avenue that they are a part of is community service. Mrs. Truemper and her students are very active in assisting the human and animal needy and homeless. They motivate the whole to contribute to their food and clothing drives, making many of the less fortunate more happy, healthy, and safe. This proves Student Congress to be a great way to get involved in the comunity and help plan, speak, and act for the school.

SINGING SENSATIONS

The choir is divided into two sections, the concert choir and the varsity singers. The concert choir consists of freshmen through seniors, and the varsity singers consist of sophomores through seniors, however auditions are mandatory.

All choir members rehearse all school year to prepare for various performances. In late September, the choir performed at a choir picnic concert where they sang songs rehearsed from the beginning of the year up until the performance. In November, selected concert choir members and all of the varsity members performed at the I-8 festival, which is a choir conference. During this conference, the choir went to rehearsal all day and then performed their songs later on in the day. The I-8 festival was held at Reed Custer School. Also in November, the choir and band put on an excellent show, full of holiday songs and melodies.

A district festival was held in late February, and the choir also performed at the Graduation ceremony at the end of the school year. The varsity singers usually perform at the same concerts that the concert choir perform at, but they also have a few extra performances.

Both choirs dedicate a lot of times and effort into making beautiful music. Each member had a great deal of skill which attributes to many wonderful performances throughout the school year.

MAKING MUSIC

Band is a fun class as well as a doorway to an important part of education. Musical involvement helps to make a well-rounded student. Students of all classes have the opportunity to join band. Concert Band is made up mostly of Freshmen and Sophomores. Symphonic Band has mostly Juniors and Seniors. There are also several jazz bands for students interested in that type of music and play those particular instruments. There is Jazz Band, Jazz Ensemble, and Jazz Combo. During the football season the Marching Band always livens up the games. Marching Band is also involved in parades. Students play many different instruments and the band plays wonderful and diverse pieces of music at their concerts and various other performances. The band also competes in contests. Individual band students have the option of competing as well. Band also has exciting events such as Cabaret Night. Mr. Don Green and Mr. Scott Gumina enjoy working with the band students on many different levels. Band is a great class to help students to excel in areas outside of the classroom, but it is just as important. Band is a fun and enjoyable experience.

PEOPLE

Seniors achieve the strongest sense of Lion pride since they've reached the top of the totem pole. Senior year gives the students an opportunity to rekindle old friendships that may go as far back as kindergarden. Also, it's a last chance to get to know everyone in the class. It's the final time where students can get involved in activities that will never be as convenient as they are in high school. The last goodbye to millions of childhood memories in a little town where the seniors have changed and developed into the people they are today. Now, although it may be difficult or incredibly exciting, it is time for them to move on into the real world and create an ideal life as adults.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Matt

▼ Dear Joanie Rose,

Love God fiercely, protect Him and His principles. Love yourself, choose rightly. Treat others well. Think hard when making important decisions. Joy will follow, regret will be far behind you. We love you!

Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Bridget,

We are reminded of the lyrics from a favorite song
"Time, time, time See what's become of me
As I looked around, for my possibilities-
I was so hard to please."

Because of this you have achieved a great deal in your first 18 years. This persistence and desire for perfection will allow you to achieve much more tomorrow and beyond. With support and love,

Mom and Dad

▼ Almee,

From the time you looked like a ghost from the vaseline and baby powder and mommy broke your butt, to the time you colored yourself with black magic marker (including two little circles) to the present, you have made us very, proud. We love you!

Love,

Mom, Dad, Grandma, Grandpa, and Sibs

▼ Dear Amber,

You've been such a blessing to our family, and we know that as you spread your wings you will bless others. We're very proud of who you are and what you've accomplished. You'll always be our favorite daughter! God bless you.

Love,

Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Robert,

You have brought many smiles, hugs, and great pleasure into our lives. We are proud of the moral values, humor, intelligence, dedication, and tenacity you have shown in all the things you do. Keep those values and you will be successful in life. Never be afraid to take risks in order to reach your goals as we will always be there for you if you need us.

Love,

Mom, Dad, Jim, and Scott

▼ Dear Katie,

From then to now and many tomorrows to come, you have brought joy to our lives. As you journey out on your own, remember you always have a home and a place in our hearts.

Love,

Papa, Mom, Adrienne, and Ashley

▲ Dear Candice,

You are one of the greatest gifts we will ever receive (your sister being the other). We can not even begin to express how proud we are of the beautiful, sensitive, intelligent young woman you have become. You are what every parent wishes for. Thanks for all the great games!

Love,

Mom, Dad, and Stephanie

▲ Dear Dan,

From the day you were born you've brought joy and happiness to our lives. As you move on to the next chapter of your life, remember we love you and that we are always here for you.

Love,

Mom and Dad

▼ Dear Dan,

Like your box of balls, the world awaits you. Jump in and find the same wonder in the little things that always brought you great joy. As you leap into this world of dreams, never forget how important you are to your family.

We luv ya, Dan

▲ Dear Carolyn,

We are so fortunate to have a wonderful daughter like you. You have brought us much joy over the years. We are very proud of you.

Love you!
Mom and Dad

▼ Dear Dave,
You have made us very proud. We enjoy seeing your smile every day and appreciate you being a great part of our lives.

We love you Dave,
Mom and Dad

▼ Dear MJ,

From the day you were born you have always been our "son" shine. May all the love, joy, and happiness you have brought to us follow you through life. Keep your strong Christian beliefs, and it will take you far in life. We are proud of you and will always support you in your decisions as your future begins.

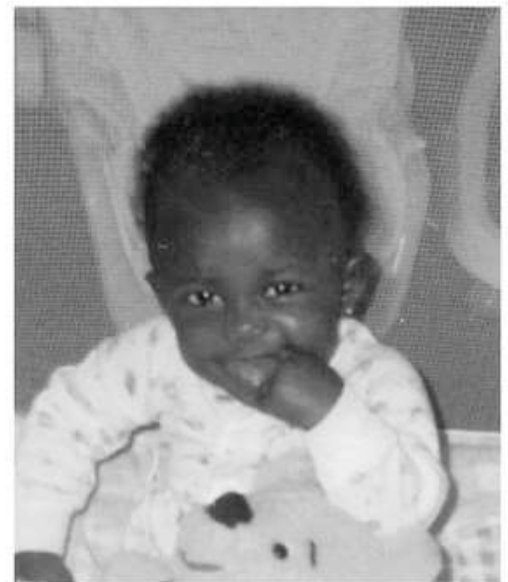

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Andrea

▲ Dear Mike,

We want you to know how proud we are of you and your accomplishments. We will always be there to listen, support, and encourage you. Have a prosperous and happy future.

Love always,
Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Michelle,

Congratulations! I am very proud of all your accomplishments. I remember the day you were born. Now you have grown to be a beautiful and loving young woman. I'm blessed because you are my joy. Wishing you all the success and happiness in the world. Thank you and God bless you in Jesus' Name.

Love,
Mom and the family

▼ Dear Rebecca,
 You are so talented and fun. Congratulations on your many achievements- from music to sports and school. We remember you at two whirling around the room to Wagner's Flight of the Valkyries. You have always been special.

Love,
 Mom, Dad, George, and Greg

▼ Dear Andrew,
 This was the first time you waved goodbye to us as you started on your educational journey into kindergarten. We had mixed emotions then, and we have mixed emotions now as we wish you success and happiness on your journey into adulthood.

All our love,
 Mom and Dad

▲ Megan,
 You occupy a very special place in our family. "a rose among the thorns"! We are so proud of you and all of your accomplishments. Always keep your wonderful sense of humor, your sense of adventure, and your compassion for others. Enjoy the next four years; you will flourish! May God continue to guide you in your journey.

We love you, Mom, Dad, and brothers

▲ Dear Meghan,
 We are so proud of the young woman you've become. Beautiful, both inside and out. Because you are strong, you will do well in life. Because you have a big heart, you are loved by many.

With love and affection,
 Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Laura,
 How quickly the years pass. It seems like yesterday that you started school, and here you are graduating from high school. We are happy with your accomplishments and proud of the person you are.

We love you,
 Mom, Dad, and Debbie

▲ Dear Maren,
 Words cannot express our love and pride for you. Your dedication and perseverance have rewarded you with many opportunities. May you always cherish your high school memories as you now go forward to charm the world! And when you get the chance, we hope you "dance!"

Love always,
 Mom, Dad, Michael, Melissa, and Meghan

▼ Dear Travis,

Congratulations on your graduation! We want you to know how proud of you we are. The years have gone by so fast. It seems just yesterday you were this little baby and now so grown up. We know you will be successful in whatever you decide to do with your future. We will always be there for you.

Love always,
Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Brian,
"HAIR" today gone tomorrow!
Love,
Mom and Dad

▼ Dear Kevin,

You've matured a lot this past year and it has shown through the good decisions you have made concerning your life's goals. We are so proud of you. You've grown into a fine and handsome young man who can handle your responsibilities. Life is what you make it. So keep focused, work hard, and most importantly let a little love in your heart because you have a lot to give. Smile and be happy.

All our love, Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Chris,

We are very proud of you. You have grown into a fine young man. The future is what you make of it. Follow your dreams. You will always have our love and support.

Love,
Mom and Dad

▼ Dear Nicole,

Believe in yourself...the future is yours. The love, trust, and strength you've shown us is amazing. You've made us proud in all that you've done. May your heart always be filled with love and happiness. Reach for your dreams and smile...always.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Juli, Jess and Brianna

▲ Dear Colleen,

Although change has never been your thing, be prepared. Many more changes are in your future. Whatever you choose to do, we know you'll do well. Remember, we love you and are behind you in all your future choices.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Erin

▼ Dear Joe Louis,

We have enjoyed sharing so many K-12 school memories. The holiday parties, Field Days, extra-curricular, sports, and Huskies Hockey. We are so proud of your work ethic, talents, and accomplishments...Stay focused and enjoy college!

Love,
Mom and Dad

▲ Dear Amy,

There is so much about life worth celebrating...the small victories, the day-to-day pleasures, the simple joys of friendships, the unconditional love of family. There's so much worth celebrating, and sharing these treasures with you is really what it's all about. We believe in you and trust that God will walk beside as you continue on life's journey.

Our love to you, Mom, Dad, Randy, and Tim

▼ Tony Bell

▼ Dear Rodney,

Congratulations! We are so proud of you. You've worked hard and you're ready for the next step in life. God has blessed you with many talents, so put them to use.

Love,
Dad, Mom, Ashley, Marissa and Derek

▲ Neil Pandya

▲ Dear Lisa,

We are very proud of all that you have accomplished and hope you fulfill your dreams and ambitions. You're very special to us!

Love,
Mom and Tom

BLAST TO THE PAST

The bridge from elementary school to high school is full of learning and fun. The route is all about educational advancement and social change. Junior High is the intermediary path connecting the introduction of one's education in grade school to preparing for the real world in high school.

As sixth graders eagerly enter their new, big school, they cope with many changes and an entirely different atmosphere. All of the sudden they are switching classes and have more than one teacher. Much more responsibility is required from their students in their behavior and school work. More doors to great opportunity open to prepare them for high school, such as school sports. This allows them to experience working as a team, and committing their time to fun extracurricular activities.

Out with the barbies and action figures...in with the CD's! Students also undergo various social changes during their Junior High career. Everyone races to keep up with the latest fashions and teeny-bop groups. Making and breaking friendships, getting boyfriends and girlfriends, people find their little niches and establish who they are going to hang out with. Girls want to shop at the mall and wear makeup; boys want to play sports and videogames. Guys start taking the ladies to movies and dating. School dances and games are social events that bring the students together and broaden their outside of school activities. All of this leads to the discovery and growth involved in the Junior High students' lives.

▲ A very close sixth grade class, Ms. Sherry's English class, huddles together with people from every group.

▲ The sixth grade girls are excited to have made it through the long line to have Mr. Corso take their picture.

THE NEW*

Junior year is all about the small things; hanging out with friends, becoming an upperclassman, getting lockers in the downstairs hallway, tormenting freshmen, and sitting on the other side of the bleachers during pep rallies. Some bigger highlights for juniors include going to Prom, receiving class rings, and all being able to drive. Many juniors commented also that their classes and homework this year is harder than it has ever been before. Another big part of junior year is beginning to search and prepare for college. Students and counselors worked throughout the year looking into many colleges and receiving information. Juniors also took the ACT and SAT test for the first time this year. They were also able to participate in a college fair, which featured many colleges and universities. Of course, as always juniors look ahead to senior year and all that will come with it.

Another fine year for the class of 2003 has come to pass. They are the Sophomores. They have overcome the status of lowly Freshmen. They have conquered the required classes, including Health Class, Consumer's Education and the welcomed Driver's Education.

Health Class grants the Sophomores one semester of freedom from Physical Education. Consumer's Education presents them with knowledge to increase their awareness and responsibility in life. And the much coveted Driver's Education gives Sophomores the freedom to dominate the open roads.

With these classes they have the power to conquer the world. They now look forward the many wonderful years to come. Soon they will be the upperclassmen and later the new Albert Einsteins, Vincent Van Goghs, Brad Pitts, or President Clintons.

Freshman year is a year of new beginnings and opportunities. It is a chance to experience new activities and meet new people. It is considered the start of the best years of your life. Freshmen receive a chance to start off with a clean slate and begin to experience highschool life. It is a time to discover who you are, what you are interested in, and make new friends. Most importantly, it is a time to have fun. Even though there are several positive aspects about freshman year there are also negative aspects. Some of the bad aspects of freshman year are that the freshmen are now the youngest group in school again and that all the upperclassmen love to play pranks. Although in the beginning they might get lost on their way to class, by the time they reach senior year, they will know the school like the back of their hand. In the end, their first year of high-school will turn out to be a great experience.

PREPARING FOR WHAT'S TO COME

High school is an exciting ride in which students are challenged to question and think about their futures. Along the route of learning and exploring, there is much preparation to take place, forming ideas and plans for what lies ahead. The counselors are a vital asset in guiding students to their destinations.

Mr. Dave Anderson and Ms. Betty Loos have each dedicated close to 30 years serving as personal and career counselors. Day after day, they devote their time to listening and talking with students, helping them make decisions that will assist in achieving their desires. With the great variety of students, everyone's long suites, aspirations, and passions are carefully considered as the counselors help determine schedules and accomplish goals. They watch each pupil mature and evolve from freshman year to graduation, supporting and influencing them every step of the way.

As the counselors stimulate excitement in students learning what they want to become, they help form our generation.

HEAD LIONS

Everyday about six hundred people come to school either by walking, taking the bus, or driving. Students, and teachers take part in a wide range of activities that take place before, after, and during school hours. How does every day run smoothly? Who keeps every hectic day organized? a group of highly motivated and dedicated individuals take care of day-to-day events. This wonderful group make up the administration. The administration includes Mr. Logeman, Mr. Cunningham, and Mr. Dillard. Mr. Logeman oversees the school and organizes many events and activities. Mr. Cunningham keeps law and order among the students. Mr. Dillard, who is new to the administration, is the associate principal. They all make great contributions to our school. All these people are a real asset including the secretaries. Those in the main office and attendance office work hard each and every day taking care of business both large and small.

Dr. Lueck, the superintendent of the district, is also important. He is the link between the administration and the school board. The board meets once every month. They set standards for the school as well as thinking of ways to improve the district schools. The school board and the administrative staff are hard working and dedicated so that the school is the very best that it can be.

DOWN, SET, HIKE

The Lions, led by Head Coach Dan Sanko, and Assistant Coaches Mark Green, John Davis, and Ron Murphy, opened the 2000 football season with a great start and carried much of their forward momentum throughout the season. The final conference record was 3 - 4, with the team also winning two non-conference games at the beginning of the season to have an overall record of 5 - 4. The Lions were determined to train hard in the late summer heat.

This dedication and focus paid off at the beginning of the season when they defeated Harvard 34-17 in the non-conference season opener. This was the first time in several years the Lions were able to beat Harvard. The Lions went on to their second non-conference game with a close win over Westmont.

The Lions kept their winning streak by winning the first conference game with a spectacular home victory over Coal City. Coal City fought a great game but succumbed to the Lion onslaught in the second overtime, ending with a final score of 41-35. This winning streak wasn't destined to be when the Sandwich Indians defeated the Lions 21-26. Homecoming was a festive occasion, but unfortunate for the Varsity team. A tragic 15-14 loss to Reed-Custer put a damper on the night's festivities.

The team went on to defeat Plano in an away game and Dwight at home. The Lions easily dominated and shut out the Dwight Trojans beating them 43-0. The last two games proved to be the hardest and most trying for the Lions. Both Seneca and Wilmington have been tough opponents for Lisle in the past and this year was no different. Seneca's fighting Irish played a good game and matched the Lion offense and defense making it the lowest scoring game of the season at 10-7. The last game proved tragic for the Lions when they missed playoffs by one win with their 28-13 loss to the Wilmington Wildcats.

The Lions showed true sportsmanship and determination throughout the season. The coaches helped the team realize their goal of winning and helped keep the losses along the way in perspective. The team completed many unimaginable feats this year, and have renewed Lisle's interest in the football program.

RISING TALENT

The freshmen and sophomore football team is a chance for underclassmen to have fun and gain experience in football. They gain all of the skills that they will need for their football career and future. Also they achieve a sense for each other and learn the teamwork that is necessary for victory.

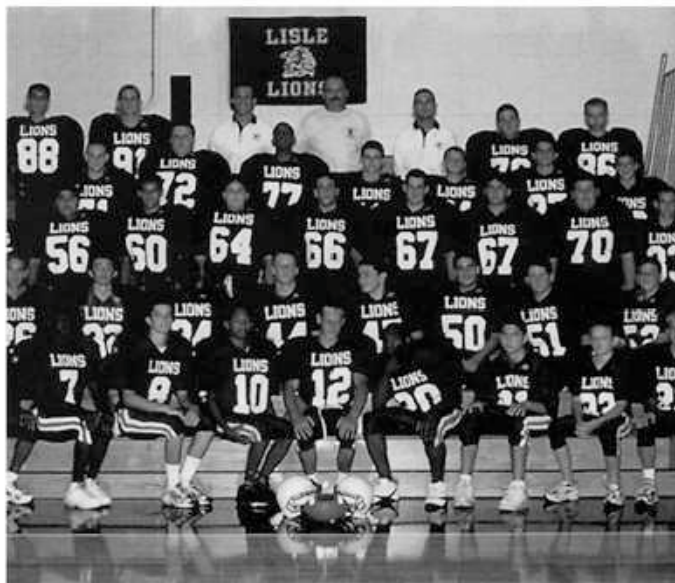

The football players start practicing towards the end of summer to prepare for their first game, which is usually during the first week of school. This team which is coached by Ron Jaegle, Scott Davis, and Mark Cunningham finished the season with a record of 2-7. The team worked extremely hard this year, and the sophomores received their first win as a team against Reed-Custer after not winning as a freshmen team. Coach Jaegle seemed very proud of his team as he said, "The record is not a good indication of the amount of growth and maturity that occurred throughout the season."

This team proved that having fun really is an important part to the game and that winning doesn't mean everything.

With many new players on the team, this year acted as a building block and step towards a positive future. There is a lot of young talent that will really show next year as the boys will advance up a notch.

Through practices in sweltering weather and rough training, the Lady Lions overcame many obstacles this year and managed to bring home good season for Lisle.

There were 22 players on the 2000 girl's tennis team this year. The girls were sad to see former coach Munson depart because of a call back to duty on the street. Coach Munson's place was taken by new PE teacher and addition to the faculty Mrs. Kehoe. Coach Kehoe transferred over from Waubonsie Valley High School at the beginning of the 2000-2001 school year; she proved to be a valuable addition to the team. She introduced new skills of play and a new winning attitude for the ladies.

Practice began in late summer two weeks before school started again. The girls met every day except Saturday and Sunday on the Lisle Park District Courts across the street from the high school. Despite often-hot weather and tough practice the girls began to get into the swing of things after the long summer holiday.

Coach Kehoe studied the players testing strengths and weaknesses of their play. Eventually she came up with a basic line up for the players of the Junior Varsity and Varsity teams. Practice continued Mon-Fri. after school from 3:00 pm on the dot to 4:30 pm. "I'm proud of the way they pulled together and really worked hard," Coach Kehoe said about the girls.

Perhaps one of the most "popular" drills on the courts were the infamous suicides, which included sprinting from each line on the court and back while being timed. Another favorite was the 3 warm up laps at the beginning of practice. Even though some complaining was done the girls managed to get through it on a daily basis.

The girls played all of the schools in Lisle's conference with the exception of a few rained out games. Team captains this year were Laila Siddiqui and Ottavia Stillo. It was Laila's last year on the team. Ottavia will take over the captain's position next year.

Overall, the girls had a good season. They got a chance to get to know each other and to become friends as well as team mates. The seniors will leave there legacy behind and the underclassmen will try to live up to their expectations.

▲ Jana Peeler laughs as she tries to stay warm while watching her team mates at a match.

▲ Laila Siddiqui was team captain this year. This was her fourth year on the team. She was valuable to the experience the girls had this year.

▲ Ottavia Stillo was co-captain of this year's team. She will take over the position of captain in the 2001 season.

Golf is useful in many institutions. These institutions range from big business corporations to high school recreational sports.

In high school, competing become quite extensive. Players partake in many golf matches and compete for the highest title and the lowest score. Matches typically last two and a half hours. Quite a long time for a sport.

Golf matches depend on a lot of factors. These factors include; weather conditions, equipment functions, teamwork, mindset, and the coach. Mr. Rick Beato has added a third year to his list of coaching endeavors in golf.

This year the team played a total of twenty matches. They won a grand total of fourteen matches and only lost six. Captains Chris Dimmitt and Bill Klimah had the two lowest averages, which were 41.3 and 40.1, respectively. Randy Ludwigson, with his 44.2 golf average, made it to the IHSA Sectional Tournament. This years varsity members consisted of Chris Dimmitt, Bill Klimah, Kevin Duffield, Matt McMurray, Randy Ludwigson, Bill Mele, Brad Whitnell, Jason Donahue, and Mike Sasgen. The rest of the team looks up to these individuals. On the green, all members of the team worked together as a family.

TOGETHER

For the second year in a row the volleyball games have attracted a large number of students. Those students enthusiastically cheered on all three volleyball teams to finishing the season with winning records. The freshmen team, coached by Kendra Meyer, finished a great season with a record of 15-1. They also finished first in conference. The sophomore team, coached by Jim Steben, finished their season with a hard earned record of 8-6. The varsity team finished the season with a record of 9-5. They accomplished this record with a new edition to the team. This new edition was coach Kris Casey. Coach Casey came from Glencrest Junior High and filled in as head coach for varsity. This position was left empty after Coach Meyer decided to start school to earn her Masters degree.

Even though the varsity team had a slow start to the season they eventually got their act together and started playing as a team. Throughout the season the team had many activities to get a close relationship with each other. One of these activities was elevating. This is what helps the team get energized and awake before the game. The team also had an outing to reach team togetherness. They all went out to eat lunch and goof around and after that they went bowling. The team was also very well coordinated. From hair ribbons to socks the team actually looked as one. There were also several things that the girls did at the Latin tournament to keep themselves busy between games. One of the things was bringing food to keep their energy levels up. One of the more popular foods was what they called road kill. It consisted of corn chips, peanut butter, oil, and sugar. It was also passed around on some of the bus rides.

The varsity team led by captains Michelle Kittrell and Jamie Muelhausen had several new events this season. They attended a tournament at The Latin School of Chicago in which they earned second place. They played against several double A schools to achieve that position. The varsity team also did extremely well during regionals. They played hard all the way through the Regional championship, but they received second place in regionals. There may have been some differences in the volleyball program, but every team seemed to do extremely well and the program seems to be improving every year.

RUNNING THE COURSE

The Cross Country team pushes it's way to victory this year. The team set a lot of goals for themselves and were able to accomplish many. They stayed competitive and focused whether at meets or at practice. Although the boys team was made up of only four members, they still held strong and made their way to the top. They were not able to compete as a team in many of their meets, but they still had a great time running and improving their running for later meets. The girls team was able to compete well in their meets, and just barely missed making the sectional meet. The team was able to come together and really connect throughout the year. They had great memories, such as the water balloon fight, runs at Herrick Lake, and of course all of the meets.

One highlight of the year was the Lisle sectional meet. Colleen Detjens, Greg Peebles, and Mike Smallwood were able to advance to the meet, and the team was there to cheer them on. However, even better then that was when the team was able to watch and support Colleen and Mike down at state, when they advanced. Colleen captured ninth, placing her in the top twenty-five girls, and also giving her the honor of being one of the highest placing ladies at Lisle. Through all of their triumphs this team was led by the seniors on the team. These were Erin Patterson, Colleen Carrell, Allan Breden, and Mike Smallwood. They shared in the tradition of running up the Lisle Park District hill on the cross country course to end the season. With all the memories and triumphs they will have a lot to remember.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Flags twirling, whirling, and being shot into the air. Flashy uniforms, and wonderfully mastered routines...all sure signs of another successful Flag Corp season.

Ms. Danielle Fortuna skillfully helped the girls in practices while Amy Giovannetti and Katie Pullia lead the flags as captains. Also, equally important, the flag corp had two choreographers to help think up, and spice up routines. The choreographers were Jessica Schuler and Rebecca Christenson. The captains and choreographers worked together to make up the ever-so-needed routines that helped entertain audiences at football games, and basketball games.

The entire flag corp included: Katie Pullia, Amy Giovannetti, Jessica Schuler, Rebecca Christenson, Stephanie Meyers, Rachael Terpstra, Lindsey Sudam, Kasey O'Reilly, Betsy Giles, Nicole Pope, Katie Kyle, and Jackie Schuler.

Each member added talent and dedication to the flag corp. Their dedication paid off when they put on show stopping performances during both the marching band season, and the competition season in winter. The flag corp does not stop working after those two seasons, however. Many summer hours are put into practices for the upcoming year. Also over the summer, the flag corp members conducted a garage sale for fundraising purposes, and they also participated in the band sale fundraisers to help earn money for new uniforms and equipment. The newest addition was new skills for practices and performances.

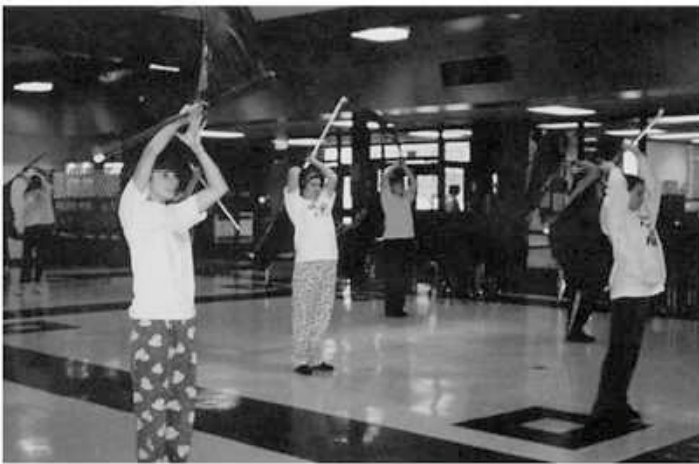

The flag corp is a year long dedication. Each member added much of their time and effort to the whole team. Together, the flag corp put on many performances that were appreciated, and that they are very proud of.

TRUE DEDICATION

As the fall sports season comes to an end, the boys basketball team begins to release their ambitions on the court with the guidance of Coach Mark D'Amico and Coach Richard Marx. The team remains insync while revealing their individual talents and secret techniques. Through hardwork and dedication the boys are 16-2 overall and 9-0 in conference.

Each year the sophomore, and varsity teams participate in the annual Thanksgiving Tournament. Driscoll, Timothy Christian, and Westmont were Lisle's competitors. The varsity team was striving to obtain the first place trophy. The boys dominated over Driscoll and Timothy Christian. Westmont, a varsity team with the number one point guard in the nation, was striving for the same first place trophy. The crowd came to a silence when it was Pierre Pierce verse Lisle's captain and starting point guard, Joe Cortez. The team battled it out to a final score of 61-55. Lisle's varsity team had overcome the odds and were honored with the first place trophy for the 2000 Thanksgiving Tournament.

In December, the varsity team played in the Lemont Christmas Classic. It consisted of 16 teams with the drive and desire to give 110% during each game. Eight Class A teams and eight AA teams filled the Lemont gym ready to show everyone why they were the best team there. Lisle did not receive the chance to challenge the first and second place teams, Nequa Valley and Westmont walked out of Lemont High School with the first and second place trophies. Lisle's varsity team was awarded the third place trophy.

The boys' basketball team hoped that striving for success will take them to state at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois. The team believes that working together and inner strength will get them to wherever they want to go. Each player follows the phrase "all for one and one for all."

RECORD BREAKING

The Lady Lions have had a great season this year. They not only grew as basketball players, but they made friendships that will last for a lifetime. Basketball is more than just a sport to these girls because they become almost like a family. But when the season was over the girls were saddened to know they were losing seven players this year. There were seven seniors on this year's squad. They were Anjail Abdullah, Katie Duff, Michelle Gartelos, Michelle Kittrel, Melissa Kosar, Candice McNally, and Nicole Willis. They will be missed.

The Varsity team was 22-5 overall and 13-1 in conference. Because of their record they became conference champions. This is the first time in history that the girls basketball team has won the conference at the Varsity level. The girls were ranked 5th in the Chicago land area and 30th in state. The highlight of the season for the girls basketball team was beating the Seneca Lady Irish for the 1st time in years. Because of the Lady Lions great season there will be a new banner in the gym this year.

The Freshmen girls have also had a winning season. They finished the season with an over all record of 15-7 and were 9-3 in conference. The freshmen girls were 3rd in conference, after the conference tournament. The freshmen team was coached by Christine Johnson.

The Junior Varsity lost most of the key players to the Varsity team this year. Although they didn't have a winning season the girls still had tons of fun. The Junior Varsity team was coached by Jeff Javior.

The Coaches and players would like to thank Julie Fonda for her efforts, time, and dedication in helping the girls basketball program improve and develop.

LADIES OF THE LANE

The bowling team had a striking season of 16-5. That record had been unbeaten since the 1984 season. The team was lead by Coach Rick Beato in his eleventh season as coach. The varsity average score was 715.6, and the junior varsity average was 572.7. Working as a team they succeeded very well in the conference. One particularly outstanding game was against Downers Grove North. They won with an exciting score of 1557-1471. There were many individual successes too. Top bowlers were Jill Cromwell, Toi Saunders, Brandi Saunders, and Jamie Muelhausen. Jill Cromwell was the team captain for the past three seasons, and she won both the Hi Game and Hi Series awards. There were other awards besides great scoring. Laila Siddiqui was named the Most Improved Bowler. Toi Saunders was Rookie of the Year. Foreign exchange student Rocio Garcia-Monedero from Spain was the International All-Star. As a hard-working and dedicated team, the bowlers had an amazing season.

HIT THE MATS

Lisle Wrestlers managed to pack the stands at their meets yet again with an amazing winning season. Under the leadership of a fine coaching staff, comprised of John Ruettlger, Dan Sanko, and John Davis, the Lions pushed the momentum built up from last year's excellent season to new heights. The wrestlers strive for both personal excellence and teamwork at every meet and tournament. The coaches pushed the Lions to their limit at every practice so that personal victories were well deserved and came naturally. Despite grueling practices after school everyday, the coaches kept the team interested and having fun.

The team had a dual record of 17-4, and an impressive conference record of 6-1. The Annual Ruettlger Cup held a victory against Minooka, who is an AA school. The only conference loss was to Sandwich during the middle of the season. Sandwich managed to beat the Lions by a total of only 12 points. The Lions recaptured their victorious mindset, winning many meets and also the Lisle Invitational for the second year in a row. The victory at the Lisle Invitational was gratifying not only because it was the second time in the history of the tournament that Lisle had won it, but also because the Lions beat Sandwich to achieve the win. The wrestling team also produced four conference champs: Means, Goodwin, Walton, and Wilson. Vodicka and Garcia placed second.

This year's regional was hosted in Lisle. Lisle came out of their regional on top, upsetting Montini, the number one team in the state of Illinois. Seven individuals also won at the regional. Lisle sectional champs included Chris Vodicka, Kevin Walton, Josh Goodwin, and two-second place victors Joe Garcia and Martin Wilson. Walton, Wilson, and Goodwin went on to become state champs. This was the first year that Lisle was able to win three championships on the individual level. A tragic final loss to Sandwich left the Lions just short of their goal of the team state championships. The numerous victories taught the Lion Wrestlers valuable skills, including teamwork and determination. These are definitely life skills that are important both on and off the mats.

SHOOTING FOR STARS

Drill Team members express their talents and desire to dance by performing at home halftime football games in the fall, and home halftime basketball games in the winter. The Drill Team consists of nineteen girls, and the drill team's new sponsor Kristie Selby, a new teacher this year, has great leadership help from captain Kim Laschiazza, and co-captains Bridget Wenban and Meghan Johnson. The Drill Team attended camp at Northern Illinois University over the summer where they performed well enough to qualify for Nationals. They performed their James Bond themed pom routine at the Nationals competition in Orlando, Florida this February. Along with their aerobic-funk Michael Jackson themed routine they perform at various competitions hoping to qualify for supersectionals, and then hope to qualify for state. The girls have high hopes with qualifying for state. They work very hard with practice starting at 7 am every morning. They are a very close group and get along well with each other, the upperclass girls help get the underclass girls eased into highschool by having little sisters.

WE'VE GOT SPIRIT

Cheerleading is a combination of school pride and athletic ability. Cheerleaders tryout during the Spring for the next year. They do this to give enough time to prepare for football season. They then have a meeting to discuss events that will happen during the summer. During the summer cheerleaders hold several carwashes to raise money. They then use this money to help off set the cost of camp. The cheerleaders attend camp towards the end of summer. The camp was held in Gurnee this past year. At camp there are several college cheerleaders who are assigned to one team. They then help this team improve on several of their skills. Camp is not only hardwork, but is also a time to have fun. It gives our squads a chance to meet and interact with other cheerleaders. Also during the summer the cheerleaders hold practices to be sure they are ready to perform at the first football game.

Once school starts the cheerleading squads have practice from seven through first hour. This is the first year that the wrestling cheerleaders were given first hour practice. The cheerleaders spend most of their time during football season preparing for the homecoming pep rally. The varsity cheerleaders are in charge of putting together this pep rally, along with preparing a performance. After they are finished with homecoming the cheerleaders start to concentrate on competition.

Competitions are usually held during January or February. Both the junior varsity and varsity basketball squads are involved in these competitions. Each squad prepares a routine and practices this routine for a few months and then tries to qualify for a state competition. While preparing for these competitions the cheerleaders are still there to support the sports teams.

Cheerleaders are here to support the teams and to keep the school spirit up. They cheer at every game along with several other activities that they participate in. The cheerleaders make locker signs and decorate hallways to get students to support the school. Cheerleading is a lot of planning, hard work and dedication. Cheerleading is also a time to have fun and met new people. Without cheerleaders school spirit would be at a low.

Another yearbook ready for bed. Alone in a silent Room 102, I hear intense quiet. A school room is alive in a way few other rooms are — but only when filled with students. School rooms are for students, and they are all too quiet when the students have gone home. But I like Room 102 better now than I ever did before. Now it is truly the yearbook room. The room is filled with memories of the students, the athletes, and the journalists I have been fortunate enough to work with over the years.

My second yearbook has been a pleasure. A fine staff featuring several seniors who will be missed. A great group of juniors who will carry the book on into next year. A graduating editor in Sophia Panos who taught me more about yearbook work than I ever thought I would need to know. Another memorable year is over, but your memories will stay with me here in Room 102 forever. Thanks for everything!

Coach and Adviser, Rick Beato

TO BENEFIT OTHERS

▼ NHS sponsor Mr. Bates and president Janet Seung share a moment as they take charge at the NHS initiation.

Every year juniors and seniors are invited to fill out applications to be considered for National Honor Society (NHS), and for a student to be initiated into this club is one of the highest honors they can receive. The clubs' job is to help benefit others, and each other, by fund-raisers, volunteering, and by other ways.

Students are initiated into this club based on grades, activities, and character. At the initiation ceremony each new member is introduced by a speech given by an old member. Both Mr. Bates and Ms. Dinardo attended the initiation. Mr. Bates will retire after this year and is handing his job of NHS sponsor to Ms. Dinardo. At the ceremony, one by one, four students came up, gave a speech, and lit one of the four candles set up at the center table. Each candle stood for a different theme of NHS; Leadership, Service, Character, and Scholarship.

Each year NHS gives tours for the open house at the high school for kids from the junior high. Members also sold breakfast on the stage before midterms in the winter.

Being selected is a honor and students are expected to set an example for others and become a leader.

▲ Jessica Schmitz hurries to take a picture as new NHS members crowd around.

▲ NHS seniors Erin Hyland and Dane Bista pour together fruit juice and 7UP to make refreshments.

▲ Senior Erin Patterson lights the first candle of the night standing for Leadership, one of the four main themes of NHS.

▲ Both old and new members of NHS gather around to take the first group picture of 2001.

▼ Rebecca Christenson, James Bowers, Kim Laschiazza, Jessica Schmitz, Erin Hyland, and Brandi Wells open the play.

▼ Jessica Schmitz and Chris Kerback play the happy young couple in the lead parts of The Boyfriend.

▲ Mrs. Kerback works hard and provides direction to make the musical run smoothly.

LITTLE BROADWAY

The production of the musical The Boyfriend, directed by Patricia Kerback, was a great achievement. One night's performance was given for senior citizens. It was a great opportunity for a dress rehearsal for the students, and a fun night for the seniors. Then for two nights The Boyfriend was open to the public. The acting, singing, and dancing brought together a great rendition of the sweet and funny play about finding love.

Behind this production was months of hard work and late nights. A musical goes much further than the actors and singers the audience sees on stage. There is the pit band which provides the live music that makes a musical so enjoyable. Credit must also be given to the lighting crew because without them there could hardly be a production. Each scene is perfected by the beautiful settings carefully crafted and designed by art students and many other talented volunteers. The stage crew that works continuously keeps the pace running smoothly.

Under the direction of Mrs. Kerback, the musical was pulled off with success, but she did not do it alone. The lively and unforgettable dances were choreographed by Rhonda Leasure and Maren Mack. They worked long and hard with the actors and the dancers in the company. Chris Kerback and Maureen Golden were an indispensable team as the student directors. The pit band was lead by their student director Caitlyn Getty. Katie Clark was stage manager, and lights were taken care of by Michelle Umali and Jack Otto. Other students involved were Jennifer Ossler who took charge of costumes, and Laila Siddiqui in charge of make-up.

Many other students, faculty members, and, of course, parents helped to handle tickets, sound, costumes, set, and all other tiny aspects which must come together for a truly good production. Everyone involved in the musical contributed their hard work and time. For all the work, there was a lot of fun in the making of The Boyfriend.

A NIGHT TO REMEMBER

Despite the unpleasant weather, the 2001 prom on Saturday, May 26 was enjoyable for all. A sigh of relief was heard from the many students attending. After months of shopping and organizing, everyone was ecstatic prom was finally here. When the clock struck 6:00, the Signature Room in Seven Bridge was congested with cars and fancy stretch limos. Students entered the luxurious ballroom filled with intricate decorations ready to get their groove on.

As couples arrived, the winning tickets for the raffle were announced. Pictures were taken by Lifetouch Prestige Portraits sometime after arrival. Hors-d'œuvres were eaten until dinner was served from 7:00 to 8:30. Couples were given the choice of sauteed chicken or vegetarian pasta. After eating, couples gazed at their picture frames to remember this momentous occasion.

When 8:30 arrived, couples put smiles on their faces, laughter on their lips, and happiness in their hearts. The guys were ready to sweat out of their tuxedos. The ladies were ready to take off their uncomfortable high heeled shoes and break it down on the dance floor.

The announcement of the Prom King, Joe Sarb, and Queen, Erin Hyland, was a great highlight of the night. They took each others hands and slow danced to the prom theme, Tony Benet's, "The Way You Look Tonight." The other couples surrounded them and watched as the 2001 prom king and queen swayed to the music. Junior Erin Lindsey says, "they looked just like Cinderella and her prince."

As the clock struck 11:30, couples left a part of themselves at the Signature Room in Seven Bridges. Senior, Mirko Dimitrijevic says, "it was definitely a night I will remember for the rest of my life." Couples left the crowded parking lot ready to continue their nights' activities with out any regrets.

▲ The prom king Joe Sarb embraces his queen Erin Hyland as they dance to the theme song, "The Way You Look Tonight".

▲ Leslie Cates phones home to tell her mom about all the wonderful fun she had at prom.

▼ Lauren Sampson, with her date Mike Kroupa, lays out the funk for all to see at prom.

▼ Erin Lindsey, Leslie Cates, Laura Reasoner, and Emily Reese get their groove on to celebrate prom night.

▼ A group of seniors and their dates wait patiently for dinner.

▼ Shiraz Sherwani and Josh Uster were ordered to take pictures of their dates and their friends.

▲ Neil Pandya is quite the ladies man! Neil dances with his date Nicole Dean and good friend Sophia Panos.

▲ The crowd anxiously awaits as the DJ throws out prom favors.

▲ Jake McDonald and his date Rachel LeClerc enjoy Samantha Campanaro's company as they dance the night away.

LIKE WOAH

▲ With determination in his face, Greg Peebles rounds the last curve to the finish.

The girls track and field team had an exciting season. The first meet was their time to see what they had. The girls took third place at the Indoor Conference Meet, the best finish in a long time at that meet. The girls continued to improve thought the season. The girls had a fun-filled time, they went on a climbing wall expedition to Indoor Summits. The Herscher Meet proved to be a very surprising performance by all, as many lady lions placed well. We beat Momen! Then came the conference meet, the girls took second, again the best finish in a long time. There were 5 girls who placed first at that meet, giving them all conference honors, Rachel Riha, Lauren Sampson, Andrea Norris, Erin Patterson, and Michelle Kittrell. These five girls, as well as Alisha Kimbro, Tammy Burris, Liz Phelps, and Jenna Leone, made the state track meet. The girls traveled down to Charleston, Illinois to compete with the best. Although all the girls had excellent performances, Michelle Kittrell was the only girl to make finals and place ninth in state. The girls were lead by their excellent leaders, captain Erin Patterson, and Coaches Dave Gustafson, Don Green, Kathy Swanson, and Matt Malich.

The boys team had an outstanding season as well. They also managed a third place in the Indoor Conference Meet and a second place finish in conference. They had 4 guys place first in the conference meet, Peter Taylor, Mirko Dimitrijevic, Joe Garcia, and Mauricio Ayala. These four boys were named all conference for track. These four boys, as well as Nick Fremouw and Dan Wilk, qualified for the state meet, also in Charleston, Illinois. They had wonderful performances, and great experiences, although no one qualified for finals.

Both teams finished their season on a high note. They witnessed many first places and personal bests for themselves and for teammates. More importantly both teams were able to come together and really enjoy what being on a sports team is all about.

TRUE CHAMPIONS

Talent, persistence, and personal goals are all major elements in softball. Dedication to the game and team overrules everything else. The Lisle Lions are a prime example of a dedicated and talented softball team. Each member put their all into the sport, and their effort definitely paid off.

Varsity softball included thirteen players, ranging from freshmen to seniors. Also, managers Samantha Campanaro and Laura Reasoner helped take charge at practices and games. The team had a great season with a record of 29 wins and a mere 5 losses. The team had two major goals this season, to become conference champions and to beat Dwight. With their heads held high, they accomplished both. In fact, this season was the first time in a long time that the Lisle Lions beat Dwight in softball.

The Lions are members of the Interstate Eight Conference and are the first team to win the conference title. They were honored with first place with a 13-1 conference record. The all-conference players who were picked consisted of Jamie Muelhausen, who earned the Ernie Banks award, Jessica Kalal, Erika Buchholz, who earned the Rookie of the Year award, Michelle Holtorf, who also earned the Rookie of the Year award, and Stephanie Gockley who was awarded with the Golden Glove award. Leslie Cates earned honorable mention for all-conference.

All in all, the Lisle Lions varsity softball team had a very rewarding season. They accomplished their two major team goals, and each member accomplished their own personal goals. Many of the varsity team members are leaving the Lisle Lions softball team for college, however the varsity team will stay teammates forever.

The junior varsity softball team also had a great season. They ended the season with a 16-8 record, the best junior varsity record since 1994. Team captains included Ashley Bieneman, Katie Thompson, and Amy Venard. The team consisted of multiple, hardworking and determined softball players who gave everything to accomplish their team goals. They were successful by winning the consolation bracket of the Byron tournament. In that tournament, freshman Lisa Gartelos was the home run hitter. Also, the junior varsity softball team finished their season above .500 overall in conference. Not only did the junior varsity team successfully finish their season, they also prepared many upcoming varsity players for the years to come. That alone is rewarding in itself.

PLAY BALL

Lions baseball started the 2001 season strong. Both JV and Varsity teams began the season with lots of training and long practices. Coach Jim Steben and Coach Pete Meyer of the Varsity team encouraged lots of hard work and dedication.

The JV team, under the leadership of Coach Ron Jaegle, had a great season. Coach Jaegle made practices fun, while instilling the skills needed to meet the demands of a challenging season. The JV squad used these skills to finish up the season with a 6-7 conference record and an 11-13 non-conference record.

The Varsity team opened up the season with a spectacular non-conference record of 4-0. After the great first push, the Lions lost some momentum and continued on a roller coaster ride through the season. The Lions met the last of their conference challenges with a strong four game winning streak and advanced to the third round of regionals. The final game of the season was a tragic loss to St. Francis. This left the final record for the Varsity at 17-12 non-conference and 6-8 conference.

Both teams had a strong sense of unity and friendship. The seniors accepted the juniors into the team with few problems. This helped the season run smoothly, although the Seniors graduating are going to leave very large shoes to fill. Some players are already looking at summer league to hone their skills and prepare for next year.

A SEASON TO REMEMBER

First year tennis coach Debbie Kehoe led her boys' team to success and a very memorable season. Through all of the vigorous practice, diligent oversight, and consistent preparation, they left the year with an outstanding 5-7 record.

The Junior Varsity boys' team consisted of freshmen Danny Modaff, Kunal Savkur, Vance Exner, and Steven Liu. The Varsity team included sophomore Steve Peebles, juniors James Bowers, Matt Modaff, and Matt Sherman, and seniors Joe Sarb, Cole Exner, Tom McLaughlin, Gleen Walker, and Dan Swindle. Cole Exner and Glenn Walker were the Co-Captains. Each player performed this best individually and made the team proud, especially Cole Exner, who ended the year with an undefeated 16-0.

Training their minds and bodies and holding fast to their determination, the boys achieved many goals by working as a team. Even though many of their games were rained out and they were unable to reschedule, they continued to manifest strength. They participated in the Montini Tournament and brought home a second place. After competing in the Yorkville Tournament, they carried a third place ranking. One of the goals of the team was to defeat Coal City, their only other conference opponent. Meeting their high expectations, they won every game against them on both the Junior Varsity and Varsity levels.

The six seniors who will be parting the team left an ever-lasting impression on the teammates who will continue next year. They "... were powerful contributors to the team's success," says Coach Debbie Kehoe. Students from the past share their knowledge and experiences to help form the future generation of tennis players.

SUCH SWEET SORROW

Hugs, laughs, and memories filled the air at the Senior Banquet. Here the seniors were brought together one last time before graduation to celebrate their completion of high school. The tables were set with beauty and the employees of the Hilton waited to serve food and drinks to the seniors as they arrived. The parents of the senior class put in a lot of their time and effort in planning the banquet to give the seniors one last good-bye.

The senior banquet took place on May 8th at the Hilton Hotel in Lisle. This is the second time it has been held at this hotel. Here the seniors were given their yearbooks and had their first glimpse at them. Later in the evening the seniors received senior wills and superlatives. To conclude the evening the seniors viewed a slideshow, which was made up of all the pictures of the seniors from the past and the present. The seniors could donate these pictures to have in the slideshow, however there were also some surprise pictures.

As the food disappeared and another picture was taken another memory was made for the class of 2001. The seniors will have these pictures as well as their memories to remember their senior banquet as well as the rest of their senior year they leave behind.

SAVE TONIGHT

Graduation is that time of year when friends and classmates say goodbye and share just one more night as a whole. The class of 2001 has certainly made their mark on Lisle Senior High and will not be forgotten.

The 2001 commencement ceremony took place on Friday, June 1st at 7:30 p.m. The gym was crowded with friends, family, and loved ones as the seniors proudly filed into the gym one last time. The night was started off by some selections from the choir and Varsity Singers. The melodious tunes were a great opening.

Mr. Ron Logeman, principal at LHS, gave his words of wisdom and wished the senior class best of luck in their future endeavors. The valedictorians, Lisa Eugea and Maren Mack, followed with their inspiring and heart-felt speeches. Each was unique and extremely meaningful. After some words from other important figures in the school district, it came time for the dispensing of diplomas. Each senior was announced and recognized for their achievements in graduating high school. When the commencement was finished, everyone gathered in the commons for hugs and pictures.

Overall, the night was momentous and tearful. Smiles were flashed as the class of 2001 said goodbye and reminisced about the past four years. They will not be forgotten and have shown everyone they are capable of anything and ready to take on the world.
