Traditions are statements, beliefs, legends, customs and all things that are handed down from generation to generation. Traditions represent constancy, but they are rooted in change. In this world of diversity and New York minutes, we can not be arfraid of change but must embrace it. Change is all around us from the time we enter high school as awkward freshmen until we grow into young men and women ready to face the future. We enter the world to learn, to teach and make something of our lives and world. Where do our traditions come from? We make them every moment. When we walk through the new front doors of our school. When we race around the bend of the bright new hallways as the bell starts to ring. When we flood the new auditorium with applause while the curtain falls. When we rise to our feet cheering in the packed new gym.

We are creating something new while our proud spirit remains untouched. Last year we began a process of change and expansion that even now is not complete. As our school grows around us and brings with it new traditions, the old building is still the foundation of the bricks. And the goals and ideals of past generations are still the foundations of our lives. It is true that the good things in life remain unchanged, and the greatest things become traditions. Last year's yearbook was entitled 'Building.' As one united spirit we are Building . . . a new tradition. . .

A New School

Students enter the new area of the building.

Ms. Sullivan teaches her class about the joys of English.

Students are looking forward to a great year

Seniors Virginia Frigon and Aimee Hanson decorate their lockers

Students put on book covers.

Mr. Beato teaches his class interesting facts.

Juniors Bri Smith and Christen Cleveland stop to take a picture

Student teacher Mr. Raia helps junior Liz Phelps.

The bell rings and lockers slam as students head for their classes. Though confused look and lost students are common on the first week of school, more students than usual had these characteristics. With the addition of several new classrooms, a new gym, and classrooms still under construction, the school was almost chaos. Students were late to class, walked into the wrong classrooms, and were, in general, lost. Students did eventually find their way, but only with the careful guidance of experienced teachers.

Through the chaos, there were still happy reunions and new friendships made. Students personalized lockers, caught up on social events of the summer and goofed off until the bell rang. It was the start of another great school year.

Showing Spirit

Sophomores Ben Whitnell and Vanessa Reilly finish the relay.

Senior Stefan Rafacz races for the moving ladder.

Juniors Tee Crowder and Torrin Wilson break it down during the male drillteam.

The seniors cheer on their class during the events.

Seniors Brandon Boyd and Stephanie Leasure goof off before the bell rings that signals the end of class.

Sophomores Dave Sally and Scott Fox attempt a male kick routine.

Senior bias Shannon Flanagan and Amy Venard show the underclassmen their strength during homecoming week.

Ashley Valentine starts off the crab walk for the human relay.

As the autumn breeze stirred the recently fallen leaves, it was hard not to think about the upcoming Homecoming week. School spirit got a jump start for the new school as well as the new school year. Students were found decorating the hallways, participating in decathorama, dressing in school colors, and wearing hats and pajamas. The students undoubtedly bonded as the senior, junior, sophomore and freshman class each fought for the best score during these activities.

The week concluded with the end of the school week pep-rally and traditional Saturday morning parade followed by the invigorating game and dance. The week was a success and a memorable one at that.

by Amy Venard and Yana Chikiris

Freshman Stephanie Rapciak overpowers her opponent.

Sophomore Ben Whitnell grins as he foresees his victory.

The sophomore male drillteam walks off the field, satisfied at their performance

Jennifer Geraskey and George Dzuricko smile broadly.

Michelle Devenny and Stefan Rafaz are announced for homecoming court.

Junior Lucas Murray introduces the ladies on court.

Homecoming king Nick Serritella and queen Maria Campanaro are crowned.

The seniors and juniors show off their break-throughs.

Underclassmen breaks wait on the sidelines.

Sophomore Dominique Gidron gets ready to play.

The senior guys get pumped up for the big game.

Excited students and faculty entered the gym to lively tunes played by the band. The runner ups were George Dzuricko and Stephanie Gockley. Homecoming king was Nick Serritella and Maria Campanaro was queen. The flags, drill team, and cheerleaders all gave performances full of spirit. The volleyball, golf, tennis, and cross-country teams were recognized for their outstanding seasons. Coach Dan Sanko introduced the football team and fans went wild with anticipation for the game ahead. The crowd was also entertained by the sophomore male drill team. The rally featured Kiss-a-Senior and Pie-a-Teacher contests. Football players and eager fans left the gym ready for the big game.

by Preeti Nath

Coach Ron Murphy talks to quarterback Brett Fox.

The varsity cheerleaders spelled out "Homecoming 02" with cups.

Varsity players try as hard as they can to block the punt.

Not only were they on court but they help during the game.

A cold, windy day did not hold back double victories. The sophomores began the day by beating Reed-Custer 35-0. The Varsity came off strong as well. Scott Fox scored the first touchdown giving the team a 6-0 lead. It was soon 7-0 when Matt Logeman's kick was good for the extra point. Reed Custer scored one touchdown, missing the extra point. In the fourth quarter, Richie Bauerlien scored the second touchdown. Another good kick from Logeman gave the Varsity a winning lead of 14-6. Head coach Dan Sanko's thoughts on homecoming were, " Homecoming is a great experience, but now it is time for playoffs."

by Alisha Kimbro

These Are The Moments

Kelly Shafer and Jennifer Kmet enter their first Homecoming.

King & Queen Nick Serritella and Maria Campanaro

Lauren Munch, Stephanie Gockley, and Erika Buchholz get together.

Saturday, October 12 was another traditional rainy night. For the first time ever, everyone had the chance to come in through the new entrance way.

The theme was "These Are the Moments." It went with the theme of our spirit week which was "Moments in Time."

The dance floor was filled with energy and color. With a rearrangement of decorations and tables, made a larger dance floor. The dance took off and quickly came to the court announcement. King Nick Serritella and queen Maria Campanaro began their spotlight dance.

An end had to come sooner or later when everyone started to leave. The dance was a good end to a stressful homecoming week.

Ravyn Williams and friend hug.

Slow dances.

Leeanna Bailey and Melissa Dahlman boogy down.

Probability Factor

Senior Katie Thompson receives a helping hand from Mrs. Jennifer Pomatto.

Algebra II brings a smile to junior Julie Kmet's face.

Senior Dan Kadzik is up to no good in Mr. Mike Coit's class.

By the looks of it, Mr. Mike Coit has told one of his "jokes" to his students.

Math deserves a high five from seniors Kaytee Norris and Wes Bauer.

This is what happens when you forget your TI-83!

Mr. Ron Jaegle looks like he may be up to something other than math.

Mrs. Jennifer Pomatto and freshman Megan Snow share a laugh.

Students work hard so there is no homework over the weekend.

Senior Ally Case points out the obvious to senior Juli Willis.

"Come on, four!" If you walked by Mr. Mike Coit's room, you would have heard that phrase. But you may not have been sure what it meant exactly, unless you were in one of his classes. The day homework is due, Mr. Coit will pick up his trusty die and roll away. If it landed on a four, then the students had to take a short quiz based on the homework. This was just one way that kept students interested and ready during math. The math department wanted to make sure that their students understood the material. Mrs. Jennifer Pomatto lets her freshmen classes work in groups of four. Mrs. Barbara Stamper-Stevenson allows her students to work in groups of two and do "pair checks". All of our math teachers gave students numerous chances to succeed by working together.

by Betsey Lupole

Science In Motion

Freshman Jimmy Venard grabs a ruler for his lab.

Junior Steve Wegener asks Ms. Robin DiNardo for help.

The science department received new classrooms and new equipment opening the science doors to new opportunities for the students as well as the teachers. In the science department there are now eight different classes one chooses from. Two new one-semester classes were opened to seniors, Advanced Chemistry taught by Ms. Robin Dinardo and Advanced Physics, taught by Mr. Michael Crouch. Other traditional classes that were available were physical science, biology, chemistry, and science technology, as well as physics and physiology taken as college preparatory classes. Though only two years of science are required to graduate, most college bound students continue with their studies.

by Nicole Sherman

Ms. Taylor takes extra time to discuss problems with students after class.

Chemistry students work well together in their lab groups.

Biology students try to finish work before the bell rings.

Mr. Michael Crouch lectures his physical science class

Ms. Taylor's biology class listens closely to the directions.

Chemistry students work together to cram all the information they can the day before the test.

Speaking in Style

Sophomore girls work hard on a group project.

Senior Nicholas Zubenko gives a great performance.

Joe Giovannetti entertains his class playing as teacher.

Seniors Emily Hepler and Maria Campanaro.

Mrs. Marti Truemper discusses The Scarlet Letter with her third hour class.

Today, students choose to speak in various ways. Some choose even to go against the proper use of English grammar and use trendy slang words. As teenagers, the students use this commonly in the hallways. But we all know that once the students step into English class, everything changes. The students were taught the proper speaking skills, better writing techniques, and also studied numerous novels.

As freshmen and sophomores, students are required to take English I and II, where important English skills were practiced, such as presenting an assigned speech each quarter. As for juniors and seniors, they must select at least two courses in the department, such as business communications, journalism lab, and several others. Teachers made these classes enjoyable by having the students act out plays, doing enjoyable and exciting projects, and playing educational games.

Making History

Junior boys take some time out of history to say "Hi" to the camera.

Mr. Nick Raia seems to be ready to student teach.

Senior Kyle Venard finds some good use out of his history book.

Mrs. Christine Jaegle's government class shows that Democrats and Republicans can get along after all!

Junior Jason Schau and senior Betsy Giles dance blindfolded in the hallway.

Juniors Jackie Schuler and Sarah Andersen work together on their timelines.

The social studies department wanted their classroom curriculum to be more interactive, and they achieved just that. They strayed away from books and replaced them with mock trials and a mini Congress.

The senior class enjoyed a government class that did not use any books. Instead, they debated topics such as abortion and gun control. Near the end of both semesters, Mrs. Christine Jaegle's government classes came together in the auditorium to vote and pass bills.

U.S. History classes participated in mock trials, skits, and presented lessons. They drew collages and maps and wrote diaries. Through all these activities, the juniors learned the four themes of history: freedom, change, conflict, and contribution.

Mr. Bruce Howell said, "This new design allows students to demonstrate a deeper understanding of the concept of history rather than taking a pencil and paper test."

Expanding Minds

Seventh hour Spanish class relaxes as they begin story time.

Senora Sally reads Donde esta Spot to her Seventh hour class.

Madame Svea Patrick discusses the notes on the board.

French III and IV class studies hard before they take a test.

Senior Juliann Barker gives a thumbs up.

Madame Patrick listens as students practice their accents.

Nick Chang shows his feelings towards classes besides Spanish.

As we took our first steps as babies, we began to explore new things beyond our parent's arms. Soon we began to speak in complete sentences from our opinions. Before you know it, we were all grown up. Part of being a teenager includes making our own decisions.

A choice most teenagers were given is the opportunity to learn about other cultures. The option to speak another language expands the students mind. Students were presented with the option of taking either French or Spanish. Both classes offer I through IV with each step advancing further into the culture and language. Cultural education gives great opportunities for students to be bilingual for the mixed ethnic country that we live in today.

Pump it Up!!

Guys stand tall and proud for the camera.

Junior boys set up for a football play.

Unavoidably, teenagers grow older. They start to worry about their appearance more than other things. Guys want to be stronger and girls want to have nicer figures. Trainers Debbie Kehoe, Jim Steben, and Mark D'Amico made this possible. They pushed students to do their best. It was not an easy task, but both students and teachers enjoyed the time they spent together.

In addition to getting in shape physically, the students also worked mentally. They took tests and quizzes over every lesson. A new improvement of the class was that for each unit student chose from various fitness courses. This gave students a better outlook and less resistance as they pumped their bodies into shape. It was a great success.

by Yana Chikiris

Dustin Lacewell gives it a high kick.

Coach Mark D'Amico says, "No pictures please," as the camera flashes.

Students help out the substitute by checking in for attendance.

Dustin Lacewell and Colin Zettle get ready to play ball.

Two ladies take a stroll to get their exercise in for the day.

Goofy senior Brittney Williams dances towards the locker room.

Guys pause from their game to flex for the yearbook camera.

Adding a little technology, students scan for the most tempting recipes on the Internet.

Survival Skills

Shelly Imbler looks through her child development book.

Ms. Kathy Jankovic is all smiles.

Senior Ellyn Wood gets stuck with cleaning dishes.

Kyle Carnahan gets the supplies ready to start cooking.

Katie Jakalski pauses to smile during child development.

There are various courses presented to students in order to teach home economic skills. Such classes are taught by Ms. Kathy Jankovic, commonly known as Ms. J. These classes are food preparation, child development, and managing personal resources. Food preparation is offered twice for the determined chef. In Food Preparation I, she taught the basics of cooking and the kitchen. In Food Preparation II, she taught how to create more complex meals. Senior Shannon Flanagan said, "Food preparation was a wonderful experience because in it I learned how to cook all of my favorite foods." There were also two child development courses. In Child Development I, Ms. J taught theories of child behavior and how to work with kids. In Child Development II, students got a closer glimpse of real preschool teaching by planning and teaching lessons. In managing personal resources, students learned skills from cooking to saving money that would be important when they start living on their own.

Dreaming of the Future

Seniors Zach Gwilliam and Arbjon Rexha look sharp before getting to work in woodshop.

Sophomore Karl Gewiniger screams as he smells the wood polish.

Junior Sean Cardelli stands tall and proud by his project.

Amy Venard fights to have Jason Ohman's project.

The technology lab is finally coming all together to be reopened.

As construction continued through the first weeks of school, the technology center was closed off. A wise person once said, dreams do come true. The technology center was finally finished. This place of learning gave the students a chance to expand their minds and bring their hopes and dreams to real life.

In addition to courses in the technology center, shop classes were open to students who wanted to get creative and use their hands. For example, creations such as spice racks, pencil holders, and the seven foot cross made for Tim Kuzmicki in the middle of the year, showed the ingenious and creative sides of the students. Both these classes showed the artistic edges of our generation and will help the students throughout the rest of their lives.

The Bright Unite

Members converse about art and literature during lunch.

Junior Joe Giovanetti stares in amazement at the sites.

Humanities members get ready to take off on their boat ride.

Senior members stick together like glue.

Kunal Savkur has found it possible to eat and sleep.

Mr. Rick Beato heads a discussion during lunchtime.

Junior Joe Giovanetti proves to be a ladies' man.

Juniors Joe Giovanetti and Bri Smith yell at Carolyn Sarb to get excited.

Humanities consisted of juniors and seniors who meet in Mr. Rick Beato's room two days a week during lunch to discuss various topics. Humanities offered assistance to other students through their very own tutorial program. The topics that were discussed during lunch range from art and architecture to literature and music. To enlighten these discussions, members went on monthly field trips. Members visited the Shakespeare Theater to see the play, Love's Labor's Lost. They also went to the Museum of Science and Industry, and on architectural tours, and saw a laser light show.

Senior George Dzuricko said that, "The best play I have ever seen, Love's Labor's Lost, was through humanities."

Creative Minds

Sophomore Vanessa Kalal works with pottery

Miriam Mendoza prepares her art work for display.

Art students work hard on their drawings.

Students work on their homework after they finish their projects.

Junior Charles Sutton thinks of what to draw next.

Junior Julie Kmet talks with Mrs. Pietrantoni.

Students were offered numerous options to find the perfect art class for themselves. The classes available were Art I, Art II, Ceramics I and II, commercial art, art workshop, and drawing and painting. All of these classes were taught by Mrs. Susonne Pietrantoni, better known as Mrs. P, and Mrs. Joan Johns. Students tended to lean towards art class due to its refreshingly laid back atmosphere. They also enjoyed the ability to unleash their creativity. For students, art class was not only time to create things but also a time to catch up on things like homework or the newest gossip. Junior Julie Kmet said, "Art is a nice class to relax and at the same time express your creative side."

by Nicole Sherman

Seniors Jason Pietrantoni and Brandon Boyd stunned with fun.

Mr. Green writes the homework on the board.

A Head Start

Junior, Tom Heatherly takes a minute to think of the answer.

Mr. Mark Green reviews the homework with the class.

If one walked on the streets of Chicago, one would notice the most popular topic is business. To be successful means to love what you do and making progress. Hard education, such as the curriculum taught and learned from all business classes helps one along a path to happiness in life. All grades were permitted to take interest and join these classes. Students even started as early as freshmen year and got a head start on the future. The options under business were seminar in business, keyboarding, Accounting I and II, as well as Business Law I and II. All classes prepare the students with skills needed to be applied in the business world.

These classes prepared students for the years ahead, such as in college or on the job. Taking a business class also helped out if the desire to major in business eventually came into play. As they say, "The sooner the better!"

Senior, Mike Ruta asks to borrow a pencil for the test.

Working For The Future

The CO-OP class is hard at work.

The CO-OP class waits for the bell to ring so they can head off to work.

CO-OP and Tech Center of Dupage courses were classes for both juniors and seniors. The students in CO-OP got a start in a working environment. Mr. Mark Green was the CO-OP teacher and he gave the students some tips on their job and class instructions. The students had to complete the class in order to receive credit for the course. The CO-OP students left after fifth hour and go to work at a job of their interest. The students would work anywhere from 15 to 20 hours a week to train in a job they were looking to go into in the future.

In the Tech Center of Dupage, students would leave after they had lunch and take a bus to Tech Center of Dupage. These students attended classes in many different fields of work. Many students went to a class in which they would like to pursue a job in. These students would spend two hours a day at the Tech Center and earned two and half to three and a half credits.

A Healthy Diet

Atek Pandya uses his book to keep his head up and stay awake!

"Those boys can get so crazy!"

Sophomores prepare themselves to take yet another test.

Pat Schau attacks Jen Sutton's hair with his new contraption.

Taylor Panovich reminds everyone to not be a butthead.

These sophomore girls celebrate their good health with a hug and smile.

Senior Jason Lee stops in to see how his sophomore buddy is doing.

Mr. Dan Sanko takes attendance during 4th hour.

Mr. Sanko gets ready to teach about nutrition.

Sophomore boys quiet down so Mr. Sanko can begin class.

Health Class may sound like another boring school requirement, but most students really enjoyed it. Sophomores were required to take health, taught by Mr. Dan Sanko, for a semester. One reward of health was that students did not have to take a semester of gym. Other rewards were that students learn about drug awareness, fitness, nutrition, anatomy, STD's, and human sex. These were subjects that every student faced during the high school years. There was the ever dreaded bone and muscle test, but students had fun by working on crossword puzzles with partners and taking a purity test. Mr. Sanko easily brought humor to class with his students, which created a comfortable atmosphere for serious subjects.

License to Freedom

Mr. Don Green and his students get ready to drive.

Mr. Don Green explains an exciting video to his class.

A feared sign for most motorists.

The class views a graphic video of the hazards of drunk driving.

The drivers education car pulls away.

The sophomore class traditionally awaits anxiously for their turn to be in driver's education. The sophomores knew that with passing this class they would then be able to receive their license. The sophomores put many hours into book work to pass, but driver's education was not just all book work. Students also had to put in 12 lessons behind the wheel of a car with the driver's education teachers. The two teachers that risked their lives were Mr. Don Green and Mr. Evan Gollan. They took students every day during free classes through the streets of Lisle, Downers Grove, and Naperville to practice different ways of driving. Rita Otto said, "Mr. Don Green's drivers education class was lots of fun with all his interesting stories."

by Nicole Sherman

Karl Geweniger waits to go driving.

Sophomore Rita Otto daydreams about the open road.

Erika Paulsen gets ready to hit the road with Mr. Green.

Dominique Gidron helps Jessica Lee with homework.

Yana Chikiris works on her driver's education homework.

Aly Schuidt gets help from teacher Mr. Green.

Janay Poole loses the leaf fight with other AFS members.

Excitement filled the air as the AFS members waited for the foreign exchange students to arrive for the weekend. The foreign exchange students were from Austria, Colombia, and Thailand. The weekend was filled with activities such as roller-skating, a trip to Chicago, and a potluck dinner. AFS held another exchange similar to this one with students from Massachusetts in March. Students came here and then a small group of AFS members went to Massachusetts.

AFS was about meeting new people and experiencing other cultures. President Colleen Detjens ran meetings and get-togethers with help from vice-president/treasurer Kylie Hannan. Laura Youngren took care of publicity while Carolyn Sarb kept track of points and attendance as secretary.

Helping the Town

Freshmen Gina Flannagan and Chantel Howell take a seat.

Megan Courtney, Danielle Haas and Sasha Boheme smile by the key club board.

Sophomore Atek Pandya creates some sign up sheets.

Students gather at the door to listen to what is happening.

Presidents Jenny Patterson and Bri Smith lead a meeting about upcoming events.

Christen Cleveland and Laura Youngren sign up for events.

Junior Bri Smith types up the schedules.

Seniors Christine Lima and Lauren Munch listen intently.

Junior Lindsey Wagner takes a break from reading the signs to smile big.

Key Club was an organization that encouraged students to help out the community. Students volunteered by giving blood, holding food drives, and going to Snow Valley Retirement Center once a month. On December 14th, students gathered at the Naperville train station to ride the Polar Express, which gave less fortunate children a chance to enjoy the holidays.

Ms. Danielle Fortuna and Mrs. Kathy Swanson were the new Key Club advisors. Working together as presidents, Jenny Patterson and Bri Smith led the way, with help from Secretary Melissa Mack, and Treasurer Atek Pandya to ensure the success of Key Club.

"Key Club is great because you get to help out the community with your friends," said Key Club member Danielle Haas.

C.T.A.O. was a club that stood out from the rest. There were no special qualifications to become a part of C.T.A.O., also known as Coming Together As One. C.T.A.O.'s purpose was to bring together everyone with different racial and ethnic backgrounds. Each person learned about their heritage and the cultures of other members of the club.

Mrs. Cheryl Sullivan and Mr. Bruce Howell, the club's sponsors, worked with students to help show them the interesting cultures from around the world. The members of C.T.A.O. became more familiar with other heritages by holding a new student breakfast, movie night, a dress up day, and other activities. These activities allowed members to experience diverse cultures.

Every year throughout the country, a few students are chosen by teachers in the school to take part in the National Art Honors Society. To have been considered for NAHS, students must have submitted their artwork and have maintained a "B" average.

"This is an incredibly talented and respectful group of students whom have a multi-colored taste in art," says Mrs. Susonne Pietrantoni, the group's sponsor.

To enhance their artistic knowledge, the NAHS went on two field trips. They also decorated the play sets as well as the hallways and windows. When the other clubs of the school needed any type of artistic help, they came to the NAHS students who were always more than willing to lend a creative hand.

Thespians was a theater group dedicated to the performing arts. They were part of the production Thirteen Past Midnight, the fall play that was a murder mystery set in the 1920's. They held a fall fundraiser, showing the movie Clue. They also participated in the spring musical and student written one-acts and improvisation show.

The thespians went on numerous field trips to see plays and musicals shown at different theatres. Director Aimee Taylor worked hard to make the Thespian group stronger. Over the summer she helped students prepare for the fall play.

For students, Thespians was a great opportunity to gain experience in a theatrical atmosphere and enhance their appreciation for theatre.

Maria Campanaro explains the deadlines to junior Rachel Mele and senior Stephanie Gockley.

Kunal Savkur is excited about an idea for a great article.

Maria Campanaro points out what needs to be worked on.

Reporting news to the school was a difficult task that only the newspaper staff was equipped to handle. The staff wrote informative articles to update the other students on what was happening around the school. Manstream allowed students to read about current events, sport updates, and more.

Editors-in-Chief Maria Campanaro and Stephanie Gockley led the staff with help from Mr. Rick Beato and Mr. Ralph King to make the newspaper a success. The Editors-in-Chief had help from managing editor Rachel Mele, news editors Steve Liu and Kunal Savkur, features editor Laura Cortez, sports editor Dan Schraub, and senior columnist Melissa Mack. Staff reporters interviewed coaches, advisors, and members of teams and clubs to get the inside scoop.

"What do you do in that class?" some people asked about journalism lab, more widely known as yearbook. Yearbook may have seemed like a blow-off class with staff members roaming the halls, but it was more than that. The yearbook staff had a job to do. They took pictures and wrote copies that represented the memories for all of the activities, clubs, classes, and sports teams.

Everyday the all-girl staff met in Mr. Rick Beato's classroom for a hard day of work. Junior Preeti Nath led the group as editor-in-chief. Senior Amy Venard and juniors Carolyn Sarb, Haleigh Morgan, Erika Buchholz, Bri Smith, and Lindsey Wagner worked hard by Preeti's side as editors. Murder, mystery, and mayhem: these three things created the suspenseful plot of the play 13 Past Midnight. The work behind the production of 13 Past Midnight started before summer began. Student designers learned about different aspects of theater and then created their own designs during the summer. After the play was cast, the actors put in many hours of hard work. They convincingly portrayed characters from the 1920s with help from hair, make-up and costume crews. The crew was challenged by the technical aspects of the new auditorium. Difficulties arose with the lights but the crew came through successfully. For the first time, the fall play was adjudicated for Theater Festival. The production did not go to state but the friendships and fun made it worthwhile.

The band members show off their skills.

Junior Sean Russell keeps a steady beat.

The clarinet players think about the formation while playing.

Even though the band had fewer summer practices than previous years, their skills were the same under the direction of Mr. Steve Green and Ms. Jessica Runck. They performed at four football games during half-time. Their routine was a selection of songs compiled from composer Chuck Mangione.

As well as performing in their annual holiday and spring concerts, the band went to Disney World during spring break to march in a parade.

The new addition to the school had an impact on the band because they got a new music room, MIDI lab, locker room and loft to enjoy. Junior Kunal Savkur said, "All the new equipment has made the whole band experience much more enjoyable and organized."

The choir also performed in the new auditorium. For the first time ever, this allowed the I-8 honors choral festival to be held at Lisle. Students from all of the I-8 schools came to Lisle on November 4th to participate in the festival.

In addition to this, both Varsity and Concert choirs performed at four concerts, including the winter, holiday and spring concerts. They also participated in the fall choir picnic and the district choral festival. Both choirs performed difficult songs and put in hard work to make each concert special.

Dave Magis

Dear Dave,

As a child, you loved to build sandcastles; as an adult, your dream is to save those who live in them. Your graduation is just the first step towards your goal of being a firefighter. We're so proud of your success!

All our love,
Mom, Dad, Grandma, Matt, & Kelly

Louis Herrmann

Louis,

We are blessed to have you as our son and brother. You continually amaze us with your integrity and strength of character. Know that we will always be here for you, to cheer for you, and to guide you. You are our pride and joy.

With all our love,
Mom, Dad, and Kasey

Richard Reed

Dear Richard,

We are very proud of you and your accomplishments. We hope you have had as much fun and joy in your life as we have enjoyed with you. Good luck in college, and may God bless you in your future. Continue to work hard, have fun, and make many wonderful memories during your college years.

Love,
Mom and Dad, Jenny and Julie

Alice Huddleston

Dear Alice,

We are so proud of you. Not only for your many accomplishments, but also for the person you have become. May your graduation be only the beginning of a successful and happy life.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Joe Vitiello

Dear Joey,

One thing stands out in our minds more than any other. One of your teachers told us that you were a "bright student", and we thought it was because of your wardrobe—specifically your neon colored pants. Joey, your family knows you will always "stand out" among others and we know it's not because of the brightness of your clothes. It is because "His" light is shining on you. Joey, go out into the world because you can do all things through Christ who strengthens you!

Proud to be your family,
Love, Hugs, and Kisses,
Dad, Momma, and Lauren

Valerie Brandt

A daughter is one of the greatest blessings. Your smile and laughter bring joy to our hearts. Your happiness is our happiness and your heartaches become ours too. We are proud of you and how you live your life. Thank you for blessing our lives in so many ways.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Denise Olsen

Dear Denise,

You have graced our lives with loving hugs and sweet kisses. We love you so much and are very proud of the person you've become!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Leeanna Bailey

Dear Lee Anna,

You are such a wonderful and beautiful treasure in my life. I love you so very much. I am so proud of the person you have become. God bless you and be happy. The future is yours to embrace.

Love,
Mom

Rachel Dee

Jenna Ruiz

To our daughter Jenna,

When we imagine the life you will live, we think of the pleasure your presence will give. Nothing that we have will ever mean as much as the love of our little girl. We are so very proud of you. May your future be blessed with health and happiness. We know that you're a determined person, and whatever you want in life you will achieve. We'll always be here for you.

We love you with all our hearts,
Mom, Dad, John and Jay

Dear Rachel,

We are so very proud of you. You've worked through the hard times. You've stayed focused on what you want and what is really important. To go on and share your adult life now with you will be a pure joy.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Jon

Kasey O'Reilly

Dear Kasey,

We love you very much and are very proud of you. We wish you all the happiness in the world. May your future bring you nothing but happiness. You are a very important part of our family; you will be missed when it's time for you to move on. We will always be there for you and are very proud.

With our Love,
Mom and Dad xoxoxo

Kristina Kaminski

Dear Kristina,

Here is a short message to say we love you. We know that you will achieve everything that you strive for—so reach for the stars and go for all your dreams. Best of luck in college and your future endeavors.

Love,
Daddy, Mama, Ann Marie, C.J., and Kevin

Rebecca Christenson

Dear Becky,

You have been a joy to us since you were born. Your cute smile and songs you sang, we'll cherish forever. Your talents are many, so use them wisely. Look to the Lord for guidance and wisdom on your new journey in life.

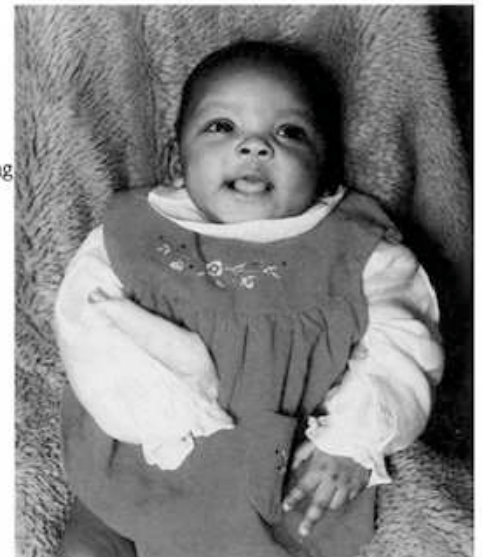

We Love You!
Dad, Mom, Sarah, John, Paul, & Amy

Julianne Barker

Dearest Julie,

Remember that it all goes by so fast. Nothing really lasts, but the things we do for God. His word says in Matthew 6:33: Seek ye first, the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all things will be added unto you.

This is the only path to true wealth, true worth, and true happiness.
All His love and Mine,
Mom

Ashley Donahue

Ashley,

It has been a joy watching you grow and mature. We are so proud of you and all you have accomplished. Keep up the great work.

We Love You,
Mom and Dad

Matt Kamowski

Dear Matt,

We really can't believe how fast your school years have gone by. You were never a kid to sit still from when you were little and you always did things your own way! We are very proud of how far you have come in the past four years. Stick to your guns and you will accomplish anything you try. We look forward to all you will do in the coming years!

Love From Us All,

Mom, Dad, Erin, Mike, and the Zoo!!

Kate Rebus

Dearest Kate,

You've shown great strength and courage growing up with three brothers. Combine those qualities with your faith and compassion for others and you're sure to succeed. Keep walking in the footsteps of Jesus. We love you and are so proud of our little girl.

Love,

Dad, Mom, Jake, Cody, and David

Cory Campbell

Dear Cory,

"Be what you are, and become what you are capable of becoming."

You are a wonderful son and brother.

Love,

Mom, Dad, Chris, and Courtney

Betsey Lupole

Dear Betsy,

I would like to tell you how proud I am of you upon your graduation from high school. I know Mom would be proud too!

We Both Love You,

Dad

Rachel Matecki

Dear Rachel,

Time has gone by so fast. It doesn't seem that long ago that you were playing in leaves in the backyard and going on Indian Princess campouts. You have brought so much joy and happiness into our lives. We are very proud of you and love you very much.

Mom, Dad, and Andy

Matt Logeman

Dear Matt,

You have grown into such a remarkable young man. We are so proud of you and all your accomplishments. You have always given 110% in all you've done. Remember: "To be a winner, all you have to give is all you have." We love you more than words can express.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Courtney, and Drew

Brad Whitnell

Brad,

Congratulations on a great four years at LHS. We're proud of you. Continue to Dream Big!

Love,

Virginia Frigon

Aimee Hansen

Hey, "our" giggling laughing never can sit still-bundle of joy, wasn't it JUST yesterday that you were 8 or 10? We are honored that God entrusted us to raise you to the best of our ability, for Him! You are beginning that winding journey of trying out your wings to fly for God and also to find your place in this world. Soar; fly high, as you experience God's plan for you!! If you flounder or fall we will always be here to dust you off and help you back on your way! We will remain your wind beneath your wings. We are so proud of you!

Love always,
Mommy and Dad

Dear Virginia,

We are all very happy and proud that you made it through your "Senior Year"! With your talents, resourcefulness and creativity, I'm sure you'll be all that you can be.

Love,
Mom, Gary, Jessica, Amy, Tressie, and Kara

Greg Peebles

Dear Gregory,

We are so proud of you and all your accomplishments and know you will continue to give every challenge your very best. You have been running since you learned to walk—keep going. This competition has taught you to persevere. A world of adventures awaits and we know you will succeed in all you do.

We Love You,
Mama and Dad

Steve Peebles

Dear Stephen,

We are so proud of you and all of your accomplishments. Continue with your best in everything you do. You have enjoyed performing for others since you were a toddler. Keep your eyes on the stars and one day we will see your name in lights. No challenge will be too great for you to succeed.

We Love You,
Mama and Dad

Maria Campanaro

Michelle Holtorf

Dear Boo-Baby,

If we had to choose one word to describe you if would have to be "HEART." Your desire to succeed is tempered by your kindness, and ability to care for others along the way. You have always made us proud! Trust your heart and you will always find happiness and know that you are loved.

All our Love,
Dad, Mom, T.J., and Bridget

Tricia Thro

Dear Tric,

We are so proud of you and all you have accomplished. Remember that obstacles and disappointments made you the strong independent person you've become. You'll always be my sweet baby girl and special muffy.

Love Always,
Momma, Dad, Bry, and Scooter

Jennifer Geraskey

Dear Jenny,

Since the day we brought you home from the hospital, you have made us all smile and laugh. You have grown to be a fun, loving and caring person. During your life's journey keep that smile and good sense of humor. And remember our hearts will always be with you.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Jay

Tamara Burris

Dear Tamara (daddy's little 'punkin'),

What an adventure your life has been so far! We are very proud of you. It is so very hard to believe that you are 18 years old. It seems like just yesterday that you were one year old and this picture was being taken.

When you think back on high school, remember all of your friends, and the memories you share. And when you read this in ten, twenty years, we know that you are still smiling and sharing even more memories with many of the same friends. Remember: "When you have the chance to sit it out or dance...Dance!"

Love always,
Mom and Dad

Julian Griffin

Julian,

You're a great role model for your siblings. We are blessed to have you as our son. Never stop being a gentleman and an individual. That's why you're special. Ju-ju, there's nothing you can't achieve.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Jennifer Patterson

Dear Jenny,

To our "middle" child the talker! The house will be too quiet without you around next year. You are an intelligent, caring, and giving person, always stay that way and you will go far with your life. We are very proud of you. Enjoy college! We will miss you.

Love,
Mom, Dad, Erin, and Melissa

Stephanie Gockley

Dear Stephanie,

Congratulations on your high school graduation. You have become quite an accomplished young lady. We are both very proud of the person you have become, and we know that the future holds great promise for you.

Love Always,
Mom and Dad

Christine Lima

Dear Christine,

We are so proud of our little girl. We have seen you mature into a beautiful, intelligent, and talented young woman; you hold the key to your future. Never stop smiling!

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Allison

Lauren Munch

Dear Lauren,

You are a strong, confident and intelligent young woman, and a testament to the meaning of family and friendship. Thank you for making us proud, and for giving us so many happy memories to treasure. May life shower you with love and happiness!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Keeley Hyland

Keeley,

Congratulations Harry! Always stay unique, compassionate, athletic, and the funny rock star we love. And remember: Life is not measured by the number of breaths we take, but by the moments that take our breath away

Love,
Your family

Amy Venard

Dear Amy Gail,

You've grown into a beautiful, talented and independent young woman. Our baby girl is all grown up and ready to face the world. But know that we will always be there for you and love you, no matter what road you take. "Life is to be fortified by many friendships. To love and to be loved is the greatest happiness of existence." Be happy!

All our love,
Your Mom and Dad

Shannon Flanagan

Shannon,

It's been a joy to watch you grow into the beautiful, talented, and responsible woman that you've become. As you confront life's new challenges, our love and support will walk beside you. Never lose sight of your dreams!

All our love,
Mom, Dad, and Gina

Andrea Montano

Nini,

Congratulations! You made it! May all your dreams come true.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Brittney Williams

Brittney,

NEVER A DULL MOMENT! We're very proud of you and all you've accomplished. Keep smiling!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Kathrine Thompson

Dear Katie,

People call us family, some say we're friends/ But it doesn't matter to us, 'cause there's just no end./ We'll be there for you wherever, whenever, whatever for you./ We'll be there for you whatever you do.

-Graham Nash

Love forever,

Dad, Momba, Zach and Kiki, Jesse, and Sam

Seniors Kaytee Norris and Emily Hepler check out scholarships.

Juniors Megan Forker and Sasha Boheme study together.

Mr. Anderson is ready to guide his students.

Senior Milan Norman brings a little style to the guidance office.

Through the duration of high school, students are left with numerous tough decisions that need to be made. Mr. Dave Anderson and Ms. Betty Loos, the school's guidance counselors, were there to help students along the way. The counselors were two of the most supportive people students could bond with in the high school years. Mr. Anderson or Ms. Betty Loos helped arrange the students' schedules, contacted colleges, and checked up on students to see how everything was going. They assisted seniors in planning their future, whether concerning scholarships, what college suits a student best, and even future careers. The counselors were able to watch each students mature from day one freshman year to graduation, guiding them along the rough journey.

Mrs. Colleen Munch smiles for the camera as she fills in.

Mrs. Linda Reasoner gets comfortable in her new office.

Mr. Logeman puts much thought into his discussion with Mr. Ruetigger.

Just another day of school, a typical thought that ran through the mind of all students when entering into the school. Who took care of things to make everyday just another day of school? It was the people who made up the administration. Mr. Ron Logeman, the principal, could be seen organizing and watching over school events. He was followed up by the man remaining to be the force behind disciplinary action, Mr. Mark Cunningham, and Mr. Dan Dillard was the associate principal. Another key factor in school organization was the school board as well as the superintendent, Dr. Peter Lueck. All together these groups, and helpers from the main and attendance offices, maintained order and ensured a safe, smooth day for students.

Seniors Zach Gwilliam and Rachel Matecki take a break to work on some homework.

Kristen Strahler, John Eugea, and Rachel Mele await instructions in the attendance office.

"Give up my study hall?" That was the common answer of students when asked the question if they wanted to become an office aid.

Many students gave up their study hall periods to help in the main, guidance, and attendance offices. While many students spent their study hall periods sleeping or catching up on homework, these hardworking individuals gave up their time to help the counselors and secretaries. Student assistants played an important role in helping the offices get through the day. They performed various tasks such as answering phones, delivering passes, making signs, and just being helpful towards the office staff.

"I don't know what I would do without the student aides. They have helped me to make the transition to attendance secretary a lot easier," said Mrs. Campbell.

Lights, camera, action...for the first time in history, the varsity volleyball team was broadcast on cable TV September 24, 2002 at home against the Sandwich Indians. Varsity won the first and second game with multiple team highs in kills, blocks, and digs. Along with being broadcasted, the girls brought home a second place trophy from the Yorkville Tournament leaving senior captains Keeley Hyland and Michelle Holtorf with high spirits. Hyland stated, "Having a lot of people was hard, but we all came together as a team." The ladies finished fourth place in the conference.

Regionals forced the varsity girls to fight hard which led them to a win their first game against Driscoll. Unfortunately, the girls were unable to advance in the tournament because of their loss against Wheaton Academy.

Golf is a challenging sport and yet many people on our golf team do it so well. The golf team placed an impressive fourth place in the Interstate-8 conference with the help of captain senior Brad Whitnell.

Whitnell was the only player on the team to make it to sectionals. His average match score was a 40.4, which earned him the title of most valuable player along with junior Bill Mele. Mele averaged a match score of 40.3. Mele stated, "Although our team lacked the depth of previous years, we still managed to have a pretty decent season and even though we are losing our number one man, we have promising underclassmen talent."

For the first time in Lisle's golf history, a female golfer joined the team. Sophomore Sam Giesler averaged a match score of 62.5.

Even though the Lions lost every starter they had from last year, the boys really came together at the varsity level. Although there were only three seniors on the team, Matt Logeman, Kevin Scmitt and Brandon Boyd, each one of them showed their experience and leadership towards the younger players. Coach Mark D'Amico said, "We are very young and inexperienced, and I can see it more in practice now that we are really starting to come around."

Logeman said of the team, "This year we can't rely on one or two players only, instead we need to learn how to play as a team."

Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity started off the conference season undefeated.

With two key bowlers not returning, the team did not know what to expect going into the season. The Lady Lions kicked off the season with a home match against IMSA. Freshman Jessica David bowled against her older sister, a previous Lisle bowler, Sharon David. The Lions won by 191 pins.

The varsity bowling team consisted of: two seniors, captain Shannon Flanagan and Jenny Patterson; one junior, captain Liz Phelps; one sophomore, Nicole Dombrow, and two freshmen, Jessica David and Katie Muelhausen. "Having all four classes on the varsity level is a perfect mix of experience and potential," said Coach Rick Beato.

The Lions enjoyed an overnight stay in Rock Falls the night before the Dixon Invitational Tournament.

Team mates help cheer on and give advice to other members.

The new mat rolled out, new bleachers pulled down, and a new team prepared to wrestle. With a more experienced team than last year, head coach John Ruettiger took pride in his team. With a goal of fourteen and more meets to win, Ruettiger saw his men work to get better each and every day. With great senior leadership, captain Stefan Rafacz thought similarly to the coach saying, "We prepare to get better day in and day out with hard work in the work out room." Everyone worked well individually also. After losing only one match, the boys started their home meet off with a 72-6 win. "Young and experienced," Ruettiger proudly sums up his team in few words.

The drill team started off their strenuous year over the summer at camp. Through great performances, they won a spot at nationals. From camp the girls went on and performed at half time for football and basketball games. Leading them through the year were captain Melissa Mack and co-captin Jenny Patterson.

For competitions, the team tried two new categories. In the category of pom dance they did an 80s theme and for kick they did a Broadway theme. "Everyone put forth an equal and hard effort to learn difficult techniques for our new competition categories," expressed Jenny Patterson.

Bonny Burke-Smith, the new coach, was a ballet dancer for 14 years and was a great addition to the team.

Second year head coach Laurel Meyers looked forward to working with returning members and the assistance from her experienced daughter, Stephanie Meyers. Practice started during the summer. The ladies attended a camp to work on technique and learn new flag moves. During the fall, the flag corps added color to the marching band. The girls performed at the home football games. For the pep rally, the girls performed to the song "TNT." Competition season began with practices before and after school. The competition song "Give Me Just One Night (Una Noche)" gave a Latina theme complete with new uniforms and flag silks. All the routines were choreographed by captain senior Betsy Giles and co-captain junior Jackie Schuler. Hard work and dedication led to a successful season.

A new classroom in a new wing, a new computer program in a bank of brand new computers, a new set of editors for this year's book: sounds as if we had nothing but change, but that would be misleading. As has been the case for all four of my years, we had people who had fun because doing great work was fun. This staff was amazing, though, because no obstacle was too large. A financial disaster? Candy sales and cutbacks. Pages lost in Texas? Phone calls and pages found. New systems harder to use than old ones? Several calls to the 800-number Help Desk. But above all, questions needing creative answers? Ask Preeti. Or ask Carolyn. Or ask Lindsey, or Haleigh, or Erika, or Amy and Bri. As the year moved on, it became obvious that we could ask Beth, too. And as a team, as much a team as any athletic group, this team was a winner. Was a winner- and should continue to be a winner - because we will miss Amy a lot, but the other seven are only juniors. Will they all be back? Can they top themselves again? Will the computer system get easier and easier to use? Only time will tell, but few teams could have a rosier future than this one. You were staff members on a great back a year ago, you are editors of a better one this year - and you are challenged to put out the best ever next year. Anyone who doubts you can do it probably doesn't know you. Thanks for a great year and a promise of a greater

A Variety of Talent

"Hot Lunch Cold Feet," a one act written and directed by Kunal Savkur, is a comical look at boy-girl relationships.

Juniors Carolyn Sarb and Brianna Smith portray their roles in "Rex".

Junior Anthony Kosar shows seniors Wes Bauer and Jamie Hammack how to impress the ladies.

Stage crew members Kate Rebus and Sarah Rauter work with director Preeti Nath.

How did an alien from Venus, two worried Buddhists, a fairy godmother, and a family from the fifties end up on the same stage? It was the accomplishment of many students' hard work on the spring variety show. Kunal Savkur and Preeti Nath wrote and directed one act plays; Amy Turner directed two published one acts. They spent over a month working with their peers to put on a fabulous show filled with excitement, intrigue and drama. Because the students were in charge, they had to work extra hard to get things ready in time for the show. Five students were on two improv teams, and other students performed monologues. The light, sound and stage crews worked hard as well. They had to set lights and change sets for four different one acts, a song, and other individual acts. Their flexibility and resourcefulness made the show a success. Everyone's collaboration and efforts put on the most well coordinated spring variety show ever.

The cast, crew, and pit band gather together at rehearsal for a group picture.

Hard work paid off when the musical, "Annie Get Your Gun," made its debut. Numerous rehearsals were spent memorizing lines, singing songs, and learning dance numbers while the stage crew created the light and sound effects. The music was live from the pit band and for the first time, the band played from an actual pit below the stage.

Talented and dedicated instructors, such as director Ms. Patricia Kerback, choreographer Mrs. Rhonda Leasure, and pit band director Jon Nowaryta of Naperville North helped to create a successful show. Senior Stephanie Leasure and junior Lauren Tarasewicz shared the lead female role of Annie Oakley. Senior Steve Peebles played the lead male role of Frank Butler. The audience happily sang along with famous songs such as "Anything You Can Do." It was a complete success.

Prom took place on Saturday May 3rd at the Empress Banquet Hall in Addison. Couples dressed in their best formal wear were welcomed by arches of blue, white, and silver balloons and stars. Everyone enjoyed showing off dance skills and beautiful attire while mingling with fellow classmates. The time had finally arrived for the announcement of prom king and queen. Jullian Griffin and Jenny Gerasky accepted their titles and proceeded to the dance floor for a spotlight dance to the prom theme, "Hard to Say Goodbye." As the night began to wind down groups left the dance with intentions of continuing the night's festivities. It was hard to part with friends and say goodbye to the magical night, but the memories last forever.

The girls' track team had some of the best talent in Lisle history. The team started practices in March by warming up with the gravity constant and then doing an intense work out planned by the coaches.

The girls' head coach was Dave Gustafson. This was his fifth and final year as head coach. The new assistant coach for the season was Sara Jakalski.

For the first time in almost twenty years the girls took first in the conference. They also won first place honors in the sectional held at Wilde Field. The team also took twelve girls down state to Eastern Illinois University. Andrea Noris received second in the 200 meter dash and third in the 100 meter dash. "We win by points," was the team motto, and the girls lived up to that promise.

The Lady Lions finished their season with a 27-9 record. They went 11-3 in conference and took second place behind rival Reed Custer. The team hosted regionals at North Central College. After winning two games by shutout, they clinched the regional championship. The semi-final game for sectionals was a tough one. The team lost to Wheaton Academy in a 1-0, eight inning game.

The captains were seniors Stephanie Gockley, Shannon Flanagan, and junior Erika Buchholz. They led the team well, for this is the farthest the softball team has gone in almost 10 years. "Winning a regional title was difficult, and this team should be very proud", said Coach Beato.

Two returning seniors, captains Matt Logeman and Kevin Schmitt, brought tremendous leadership skills to the varsity team. The team had to work through a tough season. They finished seventh in the conference with an 1-8 record of 2-12. "The seniors did a great job of helping the team think positive and continued to give the extra effort," says head Coach Jim Steben. The team's first round of regional playoffs was played against Immaculate Conception. Battling through all seven innings, the team lost 4-2 bringing their final record to 6-27. "The team continued to make improvements throughout the season, even though our record might not indicate that," Coach Steben said proudly about his team. Although the season was not as successful as hoped, the boys walked away with a strong sense of companionship.

National Honors Society is an organization that is open to junior and senior students with a 4.00 cumulative grade point average. Students submitted their applications early in the second semester and recieved their acceptance letters before spring break. All students chosen demonstrated each of the following characteristics: leadership, character, scholarship and community service. The purpose of the organization is to encourage academics while also helping students to develop other characteristics within the community.

Ms. Robin DiNardo was the sponsor and senior Maria Campanaro was the president. During the induction ceremony, NHS members introduced the inductees. The officers lit candles symbolizing each of the qualities an NHS member must posses. Thirty-one juniors were selected for induction as well as seven seniors. Selection into NHS is a great honor. Ms. DiNardo has no doubt that the new members will uphold the prestige of the organization.

On the night of May 14, the class of 2003 gathered together at the Seven Bridges Signature Room. The senior banquet was the last time the entire class spent together before their graduation. It was a time for reflection and to reminisce on the memories they shared with their friends.

The enthused seniors arrived around 6:30 P.M and were served an elegant dinner. During the meal, Senora Sally gave a farwell speech to the soon-to-be graduates. The night continued with a slide show dedicated to the seniors by their parents. The powerpoint presentation consisted of pictures from kindergarden through senior year matched with sentimental songs. Afterwards, yearbooks and superlatives were distributed; the seniors were the first students to receive them.

The evening was filled with laughter as well as tears. It was a special night for the class to spend together before leaving their high school days behind.

Graduation is filled with both smiles and tears. As the senior class of 2003 entered the gym, the band played "Pomp and Circumstance." After everyone was seated the choir sang with special recognition for the seniors. The prospective graduates were anxious to move on in a new world, but sad to leave the old one behind.

Mr. Logeman opened the night with future advice for the graduates. The two valedictorians, Erik Anderson and Alice Huddleston, followed with words of inspiration and advice for their class. The last speech was made by Mr. Steve Pawlowicz, president of the board of education, as a farewell to the class.

As the class of 2003 moves forward, they will be missed. Best of luck to the graduated class and congratulations.
